151,000 MARCH IN 20-MILE LINE FOR PREPAREDNESS

All Walks of Life Including Lawyers, Supreme Court Justices, City Officials and Workers in 200 Kinds of Businesses in Parade Lasting 14 Hours.

20,000 WOMEN TAKE PART IN PROCESSION

Marchers Also Include 10,000 State National Guardsmen in Uniform—Antis Distribute Literature.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The greatest civic parade in the history of this country was witnessed here today when 151,000 enthusiastic men and women marched through flag-bedecked streets as a demonstration of their belief in national preparedness. The great line of marchers, estimated at 25 miles in length, left no doubt in the minds of the million or more persons on the sidewalks that theirs was an urgent and potent argument.

It seemed as if all New York was in the streets and there was hardly a person who did not wear or wave the Stars and Stripes. Many who had witnessed other great parades in New York declared that they had never seen a demonstration where patriotic enthusiasm reached so high a pitch.

Broadway was a veritable canyon of American flags. The paraders, headed by Mayor Mitchel and the officials of the demonstration and Gen. Leonard Wood and Rear-Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, were greeted with roars of applause. The weather is perfect.

Start Made at 9:30 A. M.

With an aeroplane circling over the lower part of the city, where the parade started, the first division swung into line promptly at 9:30 o'clock. The procession was not to end until nearly midnight.

Surrounding the Mayor's carriage was a deep cordon of mounted police acting as protection against possible attempts to harm him. So closely did they guard him that the Mayor was scarcely visible to the spectators.

At 10:30 o'clock the head of the column reached the reviewing stand at Madison Square Park at Twenty-third street, and there the Mayor, Gen. Wood and Admiral Usher took places of honor in an assemblage of prominent citizens and delegations of Senators and Congressmen to review the remainder of the parade.

The marchers from that point proceeded up Fifth avenue, which was even more gaily decorated than Broadway. Great flags bearing preparedness mottos bridged the street and the buildings were profusely draped with the national colors.

The parade move dwith precision, and up to mid-afternoon there were no untoward incidents.

Many business houses are closed while the city gives itself up to its celebration of "preparedness day." The sidewalks from the Battery to Fifty-ninth street, the start and finish of the parade, were crowded early. It is estimated that at least 1,000,000 persons saw the demonstration. Twenty thousand women were in the pageant.

10,000 National Guardsmen Out.

Workers in 200 occupations, lawyers and other professional men, city officials and city employes and 10,000 members of the National Guard in uniform and thousands of veterans of the Spanish War composed the long column. The lawyers were led by 20 Justices of the Supreme Court. The marchers were divided into 64 divisions. The hour set for the start was 9:30 a. m. and it was thought that the last division would not reach the disbanding point until 10:30 tonight.

The main body of the marching thousands comprised employes in shops and stores. In addition divisions there were representatives of the theater and allied arts, engineers, architects, clergymen, business men, bankers and brokers, physicians and surgeons and public schools.

In the women's section were teachers, stenographers, art students, girls from the department stores, the American Women's League for Self-Defense and the Women's Preparedness Battalion and representatives of various trades organizations.

Anti-preparedness bodies such as the Woman's Peace Party and the Socialists, endeavored to offset the preparedness spirit by circulation among the spectators of circulars. Across Fifth avenue from the reviewing stand the women's party hung out a banner with the inscription:

"There are only 100,000 of you. You are not the only patriots. Two million families, 500,000 mine workers and organized labor in America are opposed to what you and Wall street are marching for. Are you sure you are right?"

The Socialists, through a committee headed by Miss Theresa Malkiel, a noted organizer, distributed 500,000 pamphlets to the crowds. A large number of young girls, wearing distinctive appearing sashes, passed from block to block, giving out their literature to the spectators. One pamphlet tells of "Woman's Fate in War," and the other presents the

CONFEREES AGREE UPON A PEACE ARMY OF 206,000

War Strength 254,000; Report Is to Be Submitted to Both Branches of Congress Next Week.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—A regular army of 206,000 men at peace strength, capable of expansion to 254,000 men in time of war, was agreed upon today by House and Senate conferees on the army reorganization bill, first of the big national defense measures.

The report will be submitted to both branches of Congress for ratification next week.

In the agreement on the regular army the Senate bill system of organization was retained as a substitute for the House system, which would have recruited a maximum army of 140,000 men.

Can't Go Below 160,000.

The regular line of the army, the bill now provides, can never go below 160,000, and its maximum strength in time of peace would be 175,000 officers and men. In this calculation, however, there are excluded, 5723 Philippine Scouts, 6409 in the quartermaster's corps, 7290 in the medical department, 3387 in the signal corps and 8750 unassigned recruits, a total of 31,650. These added to the regular line of 175,000 men give a total regular army peace strength of 206,659. The President is authorized to increase the regular army divisions to maximum strength without congressional action.

Under the conference agreement the regular army would consist of 65 regiments of infantry, 25 regiments of cavalry, 21 regiments of field artillery, a coast artillery corps of 30,009 officers and men, a signal corps of 3387 men, including the aviation section and seven regiments of engineers. In the aviation section the number of officers is increased from a total of 60 to 148, including one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, eight Majors, 24 Captains and 114 First Lieutenants.

The organization plan contemplates attaining the full peace strength within five years, as proposed in the original preparedness plan.

Increase in General Officers.

General officers of the line would be increased by four Major-Generals and 19 Brigadier-Generals. The general staff of the army would be increased from 34 officers to 52. The provision of the Senate bill which would have placed five officers of the National Guard in the general staff was stricken out, but provision was made for officers of the national guard to be assigned to volunteer citizens' camps at Government expense. An effort to give volunteer citizens in camp pay of enlisted men while in training camps failed.

The volunteer reserve army of 261,000 men provided in the Senate bill goes out, leaving the reserve army to the national guard, which will be federalized, according to provisions of the House bill. All officers and men of the guard must take an oath of allegiance to the United States as well as to the respective States.

The national guard at maximum strength would be recruited on the basis of 80 men to each Congressional district, which would aggregate a total of 425,000 men. This reserve force, together with the regular army of 254,000 war strength, would produce a combined defense force of 679,000 men.

A provision for vocational training for men in the regular army, regulated by the Secretary of War, was left in the bill and the House proposal for Government operation of nitrate manufacturing plants to cost not more than $20,000,000 also was accepted. Selection of sites is left to the President. The product of the plants, when not needed in war time, may be sold for fertilizer, under executive regulations.

May Seize Private Plants.

Authority for the Government to seize and operate private plants for manufacture of munitions of war in time of need is given and the President is empowered to appoint a board of five men, two civilians and three army officers, to investigate the advisability of establishment of Government plants for the manufacture of munitions. The board would report before Jan. 1, 1917.

The President is authorized to appoint a board to investigate the mobilization of industries in time of war. The regular army enlistment is fixed at seven years, three with the colors and four in reserve, but if enlisted men master military training in one year and wish to retire to the reserve they may be permitted, on proving efficiency and upon recommendation of superior officers.

Final agreement was reached on the long-disputed measure after a short session of the Conference Committee. Another meeting will be held Monday to sign the report.

"I think we have an excellent bill," said Chairman Chamberlain of the Senate Military Affairs Committee.

Chairman Hay of the House Committee also praised the report and approval by both Houses is expected.

BURGLAR'S LIKING FOR PERFUME LEADS TO ARREST OF TWO

One Robber of West End Homes Had Dropped His Initialed Handkerchief.

THIS HELPED AS CLEW

Men, Who Stole Automobile for Joy Rides, Confess to Many Burglaries.

Charles Brown, 30 years old, of 4007A Olive street, and Richard Meyers, 18, of 2134 Brantner place, held as burglars at the Page Boulevard Police Station confess that they have robbed many West End homes and had stolen three automobiles in the last few months.

They used the automobiles only for joy riding, afterwards abandoning them, but they admit that they stripped one of the cars of its batteries, inner tire tubes and spark plugs.

Jewelry valued at more than $1000 was found in Brown's room and in the basement under a tailor shop conducted by Meyers' father at 614 Pine street.

Brown was arrested Thursday in his Olive street room, but this was not made public until late yesterday afternoon, after jewlery valued at $250 found in the room was identified by Mrs. Nat. L. McGuire of 6139 Kingsbury boulevard as having been stolen from her home last Wednesday night.

Stole Expensive Perfume.

One article stolen from the McGuire home was a small cylindrical bottle of expensive perfume. The bottle had a peculiar top with a dropper attachment, and was in a wooden box. As an aid in tracing the burglars Mrs. McGuire gave the detectives an empty bottle and box like the stolen one. She also gave them a handkerchief marked with the initial "B" which she found on the floor in her home after the robbery and which she believed had been dropped by the burglar.

With the perfume bottle and the handkerchief for clews the detectives visited many West End rooming houses, asking the proprietors if they had seen a similar perfume bottle in any of their rooms. At 4007A Olive street the landlady exclaimed: "Why, one of my roomers, a Mr. Brown, has a bottle just like that." The detectives naturally noted that the intial "B" on the handkerchief fitted the name Brown.

They went to Brown's room and found him there. After the bottle of perfume and many articles of jewelry had been found by the detectives he admitted that the handkerchief was his and said he must have dropped it in Mrs. McGuire's home while taking a flash lamp from his pocket.

After Mrs. McGuire had identified her jewelry, Brown made a full confession and said he had been robbing St. Louis homes for about five months. Those whose residences he said he had entered were Mrs. T. C. Reeves, 4555 Washington avenue; George T. Meyer, 5969 Cates avenue; Herbert Latta, 4457 McPherson avenue; Mrs. George Payne, 5111 Vernon avenue, Albert E. Thels, 5658 Clemens avenue and C. W. Todebush, 5245 Maple avenue.

Came From California.

Brown said he had been a locomotive fireman in California, but was disabled by an injury to his eye. He came here six months ago, he said, and met a man known to him only as George, who induced him to become a burglar. George, he said, told him burglary would be safe and profitable if he would keep out of flats, hotels and apartment houses.

They limited their burglaries to the district between Vandeventer avenue and the city limits and between Page boulevard and Olive street, Brown said, and they sold their loot through a go-between named Clarence. Two months ago, he said, George went to Chicago and Clarence to New Orleans, and the

COUNCIL TO RULE IRELAND THROUGH CRISIS PROPOSED

Members Would Consist of Nationalists and Unionists Under New Idea.

DUBLIN, May 13.—There is a new idea being set forth for the ruling of Ireland, through the present war crisis. This is to have the country governed by an executive council on which will be both Nationalists and Unionists.

Although the idea has only just been suggested it has found wide-spread support.

An official announcement concerning the execution of two more Irish rebels, which became known yesterday, has been issued. It is as follows:

"The trial of two prominent leaders of the rebellion, whose names were appended to the proclamation issued by the so-called provisional Government, namely, James Connolly and John McDermott, took place on May 9. The sentence of death was returned in each case and the sentences were carried out this morning after confirmation by the general commander in chief."

Premier Asquith, who is here investigating the Sinn Fein rebellion, has occupied his time with conferences, none of which were of decisive character. Gens. Maxwell and Friend were first consulted, and after they had given the Premier full reports of the uprising and the military steps taken for its suppression.

Asquith went over at length the questions of martial law, executions and whether the present system should continue. Later he was closeted for a long time with Undersecretary of State for Ireland Chalmers, with whom he discussed the question of the payment of compensation for damage done in the city of Dublin. Further conferences with local officials are expected to last through the day.

There is no indication yet as to the successors of Baron Wimborne, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland.

John McDermott was known to Irishmen in the United States as one of the most brilliant orators in Ireland and as one of the so-called inner circle of revolutionists in the recent uprising. Authorities in this country on Irish affairs say that he was one of the original organizers of the Irish volunteers in November, 1913, in Dublin.

At the outbreak of the war McDermott, comparatively a young man, was editor of Irish Freedom, a Dublin journal, ardently opposed to recruiting among the Irish for the British army, and which was suppressed for its attitude on this subject.

McDermott, who has never been in the United States, was a leading athlete in Ireland during his youth. During a visit of Queen Mary to Dublin several years ago, McDermott, his friends declare, was arrested during a disturbance and so roughly handled by the police that he was removed to a hospital, remaining there for some weeks and becoming permanently injured.

PRESIDENT ON JAMES RIVER

Expected He and Mrs. Wilson Will Visit Jamestown Ruins.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., May 13.—The yacht Mayflower, with the President and Mrs. Wilson aboard for a week-end cruise, anchored off the shipyard here this morning from Washington.

The naval yacht Sylph was waiting off Newport News and soon after the President's arrival he and Mrs. Wilson left the Mayflower and went aboard. The Sylph started immediately for a trip up the James River and it was expected the President would visit the ruins of Jamestown.

FUNSTON VISITS MEN WOUNDED IN THE GLEN SPRINGS RAID

Grips Soldiers' Hands, and Tells Them He Is Proud of Their Bravery.

EL PASO, Tex., May 13.—Major-General Funston last night visited Sergeant Smyth and the three privates who were wounded in the Mexican raid on Glen Springs, Texas. They are in Fort Bliss Hospital. As he stepped through the doorway of their ward they straightened up on their pillows and saluted.

"Lie down," the General ordered, as he in turn saluted. "How do you boys think you're going to get well twisting around that way?"

Then he dropped the brusque speech, and passing from bed to bed, gripped each soldier by the hand, asked how he was feeling, and what he would like to have.

As he turned to leave he addressed them all.

"You fellows put up a corking good fight under as hard odds as American soldiers have ever had to face. You did honor to your colors and you country and the United States and your commanding officers have reason to be proud of you. As for your brave and resourceful commander, Sergeant Smyth, he deserves a commission and shall have it."

SIR EDWARD GREY A SUPPORTER OF LEAGUE TO ENFORCE PEACE

NEW YORK, May 13.—Sir Edward Gray, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, is announced as a supporter of the League to Enforce Peace, of which former President Taft is president.

Theodore Marburg, former United States Minister to Belgium, made the announcement at a dinner at the Century Club. He returned from England a few days ago.

Marburg said he found other leading men in England in sympathy with President Wilson's aspiration for some sort of "joint guarantee of peace on the part of the great nations."

LONDON, May 13.—Henry James, the novelist, who died in London Feb. 28, left property valued at £8961 ($44,805). He bequeathed a portrait of himself by Sargent to the National Portrait Gallery of London, with the proviso that if it were not accepted, it should go to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

19 STARTERS IN 150-MILE AUTO CONTEST TODAY

NEW YORK, May 13.—Nineteen of the most powerful American and foreign-built racing cars will battle for supremacy in the 150-mile Metropolitan trophy race at the Sheepshead Bay speedway this afternoon. It will be the first running of this race, which promises to become a classic in the automobile world.

An indication of what may be expected in the big race was furnished yesterday afternoon, when Ralph Mulford, driving one of the famous blue Peugeots, established a new world's track record by driving once around the two-mile track at the rate of 112 1-6 miles per hour. Mulford's thrilling drive came at the end of an afternoon of sensational speed trials.

Eleven of the 19 cars entered in the race were on the track for their qualifying rounds, and although six of the cars averaged 100 miles per hour or better as they swept around the track, the Mulford trial, in which he whirled around the two-mile stretch in 1m. 4-5s. was a brilliant climax.

There will be three races in addition to the Metropolitan trophy contest. The Coney Island Cup and the Queens Cup, the first at 20 miles and the second at 50 miles, will be the appetizers for the big race.

The entries for the big race are:

OBREGON WILL TRY TO GET CARRANZA TO SIGN PROTOCOL

Subsecretary Tells Major-General Scott Both He and War Minister Favor Agreement and Approved Terms in Good Faith.

Meanwhile It Is Believed Both Sides Will Defer Action, Awaiting Decision From Diplomats.

Better Protection for Border—Brigadier-General Pershing Shortening Line of Communication.

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, near Namiquipa, Chihuahua, May 12, by wireless to Columbus, N. M., May 13.—Detachments of American troops are investigating rumors that Villa, at the head of a command of 1100, is hiding in the mountains between Ascension, Chihuahua and Culberson's Ranch, about 65 miles west of Columbus, on the American side of the frontier.

By CLAIR KENAMORE.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

EL PASO, Tex., May 13.—"Gen. Obregon and I will return to Mexico City and endeavor to induce the First Chief to approve the protocol. Gen. Obregon signed this in good faith, and we both favor it."

These were the parting words of Juan Amador, Subsecretary of Foreign Affairs of Mexico, to Major-General Hugh L. Scott, Chief of Staff of the American Army.

When the emissaries went their ways, they planned to submit the questions at issue, none of which they had been able to settle, to their respective Governments to be threshed out by the diplomats.

It is believed that there was an understanding that neither country was to make a move of a warlike nature until the foreign departments have had time to agree. This is the only "gentleman's agreement" or unwritten agreement entered into, so far as can be learned.

Protection of Border Promised.

Representatives of both sides announced that they intended to give the border the best protection against bandits within their power. Obregon said that he was bringing all available troops north for this purpose, and reports from the interior of Mexico indicate that he is moving troops toward the United States as rapidly as he can. This disposition fits well with his plans, as they can be used as an earnest of his intention to stop bandit raids, and it also places his fighting men in the position from which he sees the greatest menace, an attack by the United States.

News from Washington and from Mexico indicates that Gen. Pershing is slowly drawing his troops back to shorten his line of communications, now 216 miles long, and to strengthen his defenses. This does not indicate that he is advised that trouble is feared, but that, like a careful soldier, he is preparing for eventualities. No uneasiness is felt for this column. It is in rare fighting trim and well equipped. The camps are entrenched and at some places bomb-proofs have been built and barbed wire entanglements made.

Obregon promised at the conferences that as the American troops withdrew, his men would fill their places and take up their work. There is, of course, a constant menace in this propinquity, as a clash is likely to result from any contact of American and Mexican troops.

Rainy Season Comes Soon.

The time for the rainy season in this section of the country is at hand, and because of that, the use of the Mexican railroads by the American troops is likely to become imperative. The maintenance of the long line with truck trains as transports will be impossible when the heavy rains come. This is one of the most pressing reasons for a quick settlement of the questions which the conference of Generals failed to adjust.

Obregon was last night in Chihuahua City, conferring with Trevino and his other Generals. One result was the ordering of 1500 men to the Big Bend country. There are now about 400 American cavalry in this section. The announced object of the Mexican movement is to assist in capturing the bandits who raided Glenn Springs.

Gen. Scott departed yesterday afternoon for Washington and Gen. Funston started last night for San Antonio.

Carranza Has Made No Move to Renew Negotiations.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Dispatch of 1500 Carranza troops northward toward the Big Bend district of Coahuila, reported in border advices, was regarded by officials here today as possibly indicating that the Mexican de facto Government is making renewed efforts to capture bandits who have raided American border towns. Reports that the expedition might have a hostile purpose were not regarded seriously by administration authorities.

The Mexican situation showed no sign

FRENCH REPULSE FIERCE ASSAULT AT DOUAUMONT

Germans Fail Again in Effort to Increase Gain in That Region.

RUSSIAN LINE ATTACKED

Considerable Infantry Fighting on Dvinsk and Jacobstadt Sectors and Farther South.

LONDON, May 13.—The Douaument region on the Verdun front, where the Germans for more than two months past have been held fairly close to the line of their original advance in the February drive, is again the scene of desperate fighting.

Violent bombardment of French positions in that sector yesterday was followed by strong attacks, in which, according to the afternoon bulletin from Paris, the Germans suffered heavy losses and failed to gain any ground.

Across the Meuse, northwest of Verdun, no infantry encounters are reported, but the artillery is being kept busy.

Activit yin Valhynian Triangle.

Vienna today reports continually increasing activity in the vicinity of the Valhynian fortress triangle on the Russian front, without decisive results, nor have there been important shifts in the line along the Austro-Italian front.

The British report says part of the 500 yards of trenches reported yesterday to have been captured by the Germans near Vermelles, in the Hulluch region, have been retaken.

Considerable infantry fighting, which as yet has been without result, is in progress on the Dvinsk and Jacobstadt sectors of the Russian front. Petrograd reports that German attacks at several points here and farther south have been repulsed.

In the Austro-Italian theater, intense artillery actions are ensuing in the Col di Lana zone and the Italians have put down two Austrian attempts at attack against captured positions on Mount Cukla.

Russians Progress Against Turks.

Petrograd reports further progress for the Russians fighting against the Turks near the Persian frontier, with Bagdad as their objective. Here the Turks attempted to take the offensive but Petrograd says the movement was repulsed. Farther north near Aschkala, which is situated some 60 miles west of Erzerum, the Russians claim to have made further progress westward. This, however, is at variance with the claims of Constantinople, which says the Russians, driven out of their positions at Mount Kope, west of Erzerum, are making every effort to maintain themselves in new positions.

Germans Repulsed in Attacks Around Douaumont.

PARIS, May 13.—The French trenches southwest of Fort Douaumont and positions to the north of the Douaumont farm were violently bombarded yesterday, according to official reports of the French War Office issued today. The report says that all of the German attacks were repulsed, the enemy sustaining serious losses. On the left bank of the Meuse artillery combats continue uninterrupted.

French Night Attack Repulsed Southwest of Dead Man Hill.

BERLIN, May 13, by wireless to Sayville.—The repulse of a night charge by the French, southwest of Dead Man Hill, on the Verdun front, is reported in today's official statement by the War Office. Attempts by the French to advance in the Avocourt and Malancourt woods also were fruitless.

Disorders on Greek Island of Samos Become Serious.

ATHENS, Greece, May 12, via Paris, May 13.—Renewed disorders on the Greek Island of Samos, off the west coast of Asia Minor, have assumed a serious aspect. The Government is taking vigorous measures to meet the situation.

ST. LOUIS WATER RATES ATTACKED BEFORE COMMISSION

JEFFERSON CITY, May 13.—A complaint signed by the Civic League, the Central Trades and Labor Union, the Central Civic Council and 30 citizens was filed with the Public Service Commisison today declaring that the present water rates of the St. Louis Water Department are unjust and discriminatory and demanding an investigation by the commission.

The complaint was filed by Former Commissioner William F. Woerner, former Circuit Judge and City Counselor and father of the mill tax ordinance. The complaint declares by which rates discriminate in favor of the large manufacturing interests and against the general public.

It is charged that the city is selling water to manufacturers at less than cost and that individual consumers are thus paying part of the cost of conducting the large business enterprises.

A list of comparative schedules submitted has shown that when water is purchased in certain quantities the rate charged for residence purposes is more than 100 per cent higher than the rate charged manufacturing concerns for the same amount.

The cost per 100 gallons for six months periods are compared as follows in the complaint:

12,000 gallons to manufacturers 7.5 cents, general public 13.5 cents.

15,000 gallons, manufacturers 6.5 cents, public 13.4 cents.

24,000 gallons, manufacturers 4.6 cents, public 12.7.

50,000 gallons, manufacturers, 4.5 cents, public 11.2.

100,000 gallons, manufacturers 4.5 cents public 10.1.

500,000 gallons, manufacturers 4.5 cents, public 8.2.

1,000,000 gallons, manufacturers 4.5 cents public 7.5.

Burglar's Fondness for Perfume Leads to Arrest of Pair

partnership was broken up. He then took up with Meyers, he said.

Meyers was arrested while on his way to his father's tailor shop. He was indignant and asked the police to let him go on the ground that he had a wife and a baby 7 days old. He was taken to the tailor shop and in the rafters of the basement the detectives found several articles of jewelry. Meyers then admitted he had aided Brown in robbing five residences.

A revolver found in the tailor shop basement later was identified as having been stolen from the home of H. S. Platt, 320 North Newstead avenue, about a week ago. A revolver and a glass cutter were found in Brown's room. Glass door panels were cut from several houses recently robbed.

A diamond ring belonging to Latta was found in a pawnshop and Brown was identified as the man who pawned it. Several articles of the stolen jewelry also were found in an East St. Louis pawnshop.

Of the articles stolen from the Payne home a $200 diamond ring could not be found. Brown said he sold this ring to a woman of the name of Georgia Smith, who had lived at 3940 Olive street. Investigation showed that the Smith woman was forced to leave town by the Newstead avenue police as an undesirable character several weeks ago.

Brown told the detectives he gave several articles of the jewelry to Mrs. Della Heckel, proprietor of a rooming house at 2028 Washington avenue, where he formerly lived. Mrs. Heckel turned several rings and pins over to the police. They were identified as having been stolen from the Payne, Meyer and Theis homes.

Meyers said he was a machinist, out of work. He told detectives he was repairing an automobile at Vandeventer and Olive streets about two months ago when Brown, a stranger, approached him and told him he was a fool for working so hard when he could make easier money as a burglar. This advice, he said, led nim into crime.

Brown and Meyers said that on the night of May 2 they stole the automobile of F. M. Stamper of 382 North Taylor and abandoned it in North St. Louis. The following night they stole the machine of Dr. Ellis Fischel of 5662 Waterman avenue and abandoned it at Spring and Delmar avenues. The next night they took a joyride in the car of Adolph J. Westen of 3433 Russell avenue. They stole it at Union and Vernon avenues, they said, and before deserting it at Leffingwell avenue and Olive street they stripped it of two inner tubes, all of its batteries and three spark plugs. These articles were found in Brown's room.

Told Wief of Brown.

Meyers' wife, Ruth, 17 years old, mother of a 7-day-old baby girl, today told a Post-Dispatch reporter she had no idea her husband was a burglar. He had been out of work four weeks, she said, and he had told her of meeting a man named Brown who wore silk shirts and who told him he was foolish to work when he could live by stealing. Meyers, she said, told her Brown boasted that he had stolen $32,000 eight years ago and had been living on it ever since. She said she advised her husband to have nothing to do with Brown.

Mrs. Meyers said that recently her husband had stayed out all night.

U. S. PURPOSELY TO DELAY NOTE TO GREAT BRITAIN

Action Taken Because of Implied Threat in Recent German Submarine Communication.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Secretary Lansing has announced America's next step in the negotiations with the entente allies regarding treatment of neutral commerce will be delayed on account of the implied threat contained in the German note of May 5 in which the Imperial Government expressed confidence that, in view of the new orders issued for submarine warfare, the United States would insist upon Great Britain observing the rules of international law in dealing with trade and reserving to itself "complete liberty of decision" unless this end was accomplished.

It was stated authoritatively today that Germany's note had complicated the situation, making it impossible for the United States to press it demands upon the allies at once without appearing to do so at the bidding of the Berlin Government, and consequently it was uncerain when a reply would go forth to the latest British communication.

Secretary Lansing announced yesterday that he had asked Ambassador Gerard at Berlin to ascertain the nature of the punishment imposed by the German Government on the commander of the submarine which damaged the steamer Sussex. He said the request was not in the nature of a formal inquiry to the German Government.

GETS MUSIC FROM BASEMENT

Touches Button to Start It Through Cold Air Duct in Home.

BRAZIL, Ind., May 13.—H. E. Thompson, when he wishes music at his home, presses an electric button on the wall, and from the cold air duct and the registers of the hot air furnace come in succession 10 different selections, which are repeated until the electric switch is turned off.

The music is produced by a phonograph arrangement in the basement. A circular table is arranged with 10 records around it, all moved by an electric motor beneath the table. In the center of the table, pointing upward into the air duct, is a large plaster of paris horn, which is connected wth the reproducing mechanism. After a record is played a cork roller carries the needle to the next record.

JUDD IS HERE TO BEGIN MAKING HIS SURVEY OF SCHOOLS

Work Starts With an Address to High School Teachers at Soldan.

Dr. Charles H. Judd, director of the School of Education of the University of Chicago, who has been given a commission by the Board of Education to make a survey of the St. Louis public schools, arrived in St. Louis this morning to address the principals and teachers at a meeting at the Soldan High School and make a preliminary inspection to enable him to outline the work to be done.

To a Post-Dispatch reporter before the meeting he said he hoped to obtain the services of six or seven experts in making the St. Louis survey. He will endeavor to get them together next week and begin the work next Monday a week.

The survey will continue until the close of the schools. The experts will then get together and formulate their report.

Different men will be assigned to the different phases of the subject. Dr. Judd hopes to obtain the services of Dr. H. C. Morrison, State Superintendent of Schools of New Hampshire, to look into the distribution and organization of supervision. Other men will look into the financial organization and the buildings and Dr. Judd himself will make the examination into the methods of instruction, with the aid of two or three assistants.

Supt Blewett, in an address to the teachers, spoke about the conditions of the schools which had led the Board of Education to believe that a bond issue of $3,000,000 would be necessary. In June, he said, the board saw that the funds were getting so short that new buildings could not be erected. It was found necessary to abandon the summer school and curtail the winter night schools. The bond issue had been decided on, he said, as the best method of meeting the situation.

He took occasion to deny a rumor that he had recommended wholesale reductions of salaries and because the board would not agree that he had decided to resign. He said there was absolutely no foundation to the rumor that he would resign and denied that he had recommended reductions of salaries.

BRANDEIS SAW NO HARM IN MERGER, DRUG MAN SAYS

Director of United Drug Co. Testifies of Employing Supreme Court Nominee.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Reopened hearing before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee investigating the fitness of Louis D. Brandeis for the Supreme bench began and ended yesterday with the introduction of testimony regarding Brandeis' connection as counsel with the merger last January of the United Drug Co. and the Riker-Hagerman Drug Stores Co., and a statement by Commissioner Harlan that Brandeis' services to the Interstate Commerce Commission in the 5 per cent advance rate case were eminently satisfactory.

The subcommittee, which already has recommended, by a vote of 3 to 2, confirmation of the Brandeis' nomination, will draft a supplementary report when the new evidence has been printed. There was no indication today as to when a vote in the full committee might be expected.

Saw No Harm in Merger.

Louis K. Liggett of Boston, a director of the United Drug Co.; Frederick E. Snow, his attorney, and George W. Anderson, United States District Attorney at Boston, told of Brandeis being employed to give an opinion to Liggett as to the validity of the drug merger and of Brandeis' effort to convince Anderson that the consolidation was not in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Anderson said he made a final report to the Department of Justice adverse to the merger on April 12 and he had not been informed as yet whether he should begin proceedings against the parties to it.

Commissioner Harlan stated that Brandeis was employed by the commission not to represent the shippers, but the public, in seeing that all the facts in the rate case were presented. He said he would have regarded him as failing in his duty if he had withheld any important conclusions he reached in regard to the case.

Both statements were drawn out in answer to criticisms of Brandeis because in his closing argument of the case he said the net operating revenues of the carriers were too small.

Senators Borah and Works cross-examined the Commissioner at length.

Services Called Satisfactory.

Senator Borah pointed out that in his letter to Brandeis employing him, Mr. Harlan had stated that the railroads would present their side fully, and asked Brandeis to undertake the burden of presenting the other side. The Commissioner replied that the statements quoted had to be taken in connection with others in the letter and that Brandeis was restrained to get before the commission a complete record of all sides of the case, which he did. He said he was sure he was voicing the sentiment of all the members of the commission in saying Brandeis' work was satisfactory.

"It never occurred to me and I have never heard any of my colleagues criticise his actions," Harlan said.

SWINGLEY ABSENT AFTER ASKING HIS SECRETARY TO QUIT

Question of Charter Violation Considered in Cases of C. S. Eggerman and C. S. Luce.

Charles E. Swingley, Director of Public Safety, who demanded the resignation of Charles S. Eggmann, his private secretary, on account of Eggmann's refusal, as a member of the Republican City Committee to vote for the indorsement of John E. Swanger for Governor, did not appear at his office in the city hall this morning. Swingley was not at his office all day yesterday, and could not be reached by a reporter by telephone.

The city charter provides that every city official holding an ofice with an annual salary shall take an oath that he will be influenced only by consideration of fitness in the appointment, promotion, demotion, suspension or discharge of officers or employes. The Board of Aldermen has the power to remove from office any city official who violates his oath of office.

What the Charter Provides.

The charter also provides that "no person in the classified service or seeking admission thereto shall be appointed, reduced, suspended, discharged or in any way favored or discriminated against because of his political or religious opinions or affiliations."

Eggemann, as private secretary to Swingley, is not in the classified service, as each head of a department has the authority to select his secretary.

The only penalty for violating the provision oo the city charter is removal from office. Charles S. Luce, who was fired from the Street Department by Street Commissioner Slater was in the classified service, and his discharge by Slater for political reasons is considered clearly a violation of the city charter.

City Counselor Daues said today that while the dicharge of city employes for political reasons was a violation of the spirit of the charter, even where the employes were not subject to classified service, neither the Circuit Attorney nor the Prosecuting Attorney had any authority to institute a prosecution of an official for violation of the charter.

Punishment Considered Unlikely.

Daues said that he had not had the time to investigate the charter provisions to ascertain whether an official could be punished for violating the charter by discharging an employe for political reasons. He said he was inclined to believe that the official could not be punished, for the reason that a provision of the charter gives an official the power to discharge any employe for any reason.

The action of the administration in discharging the city employes who are favorable to the nomination of Judge Henry Lamm of Sedalia for Governor created a political sensation in St. Louis. Several Republican leaders from the interior of the State, who are delegates to the Republican national convention at Chicago, expressed surprise that the Kiel-Schmoll-Graves crowd would go to such a length to obtain support for Swanger.

SLAYER OF W. C. ANDERSON IS INDICTED FOR MURDER

Warrant Also Issued in Connection With Crime for Saloon Keeper Charged With Selling to Minors.

The grand jury, yesterday afternoon, returned an indictment against Eugene Hamilton, 20 years old, 1337 South Ninth street, for murder in the first degree. On May 7 Hamilton shot and killed William C. Anderson, 52 years old, an automobile inspector, of 2235 Montana avenue, who was returning from a dance hall at 4100 South Broadway, with his wife, and his 7-year-old daughter. As a development of the slaying, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Wilson issued a warrant for Henry Cramer, proprietor of a saloon, adjoining the dance hall, for selling liquors to minors.

The warrant states that George Meder Jr., 16 years old, 3322 Minnsota avenue, purchased liquor at the saloon. It is also alleged that Hamilton, accompanied by Margaret Butler, 16 years old, 816 South Eighth street, were drinking in the saloon, shortly before the shooting of Anderson.

MAKES APPEAL TO WOMEN TO END GREAT WAR

St. Louis Pianistist, Brother-in-Law of Schumann-Heink, Contralto, Outlines Plan.

Felix Heink of 1208 North Union Boulevard, pianist and composer, professor in the Strassberger Conservatories of Music and brother-in-law of Mme. Schumann-Heink, the noted contralto, has began a movement to end the European war, which he hopes to acccomplish through the aid and emotionalism of women.

Heink has styled his campaign The Women's International Anto-War propaganda, and his first appeal is made to women in an address which he has sent to 176 newspapers throughout the United States, and he hopes will reeach the women's clubs, and bring forth pledges from their presidents to assist in getting the support of the club's membership for a cessation of hostilities.

Originator of the Plan.

Heink told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he was financing the idea himself, and that he would not ask for contributions to forward the movement. He is the orginator of the plan, to prevail upon the President of the United States to take steps looking to putting an end to war. Like Measures, he said, will be taken in Europe. Heink said he had taken the liberty to have someone see Mrs. Woodrow Wilson to urge her assistance in prevailing upon the President to urge peace, and that steps would be taken in Europe to interest the wives, mothers, sisters and daughters of the men in power to consider seriously anything that might stop bloodshed.

Heink said the necessity for such a movement was brought to his attention by a sad personal experience. He said he had lost many relatives in the war and an aunt had been driven insane before her death by the experiences of six sons. He said one of her sons was a prisoner in Siberia, another died before Verdun and a third was taken home wounded. The other three were still in the war, he said.

Men Fail to Stop War.

He declared the experience of his relatives was but one out of thousands of like cases. Heink asserted that men had tried to stop the war but have failed through processes of intellectualism, patriotism or egotism, but that women, through emotionalism and sense of the great wrong of war, if they could be aroused, would demand that war stop and that they would not be reasoned out of it.

Heink declared in his address to women that patience with the war had ceased to be a virtue and that, it is not only woman's right to demand that it be stopped, but that it is her mission yes, her duty, to see that wholesale murder (falsely parading under the cloak of patriotism and under the less viciously appearing word "war" is banished forever from earth's surface.

DELBRUECK, VICE CHANCELLOR FOR GERMANY, RESIGNS POST

Minister of Interior, Who Is in Ill Health, Had Been Criticised for Present Food Situation.

BERLIN, May 13, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—Dr. Clemens Delbrueck, Minister of the Interior and Vice Chancellor, has resigned.

The Overseas News Agency says that Dr. Delbruecke's resignation is due to ill health. He is suffering from diabetes.

Clemens Delbrueck has been Minister of the Interior since June, 1914, when he succeeded Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, present German Chancellor. In the last few months he has been the subject of attacks in the German newspapers on account of the food situation. Within the last few days the Paris newspapers have predicted that his resignation would be forced by the Emperor on account of the food riots which are reported to have occurred in the principal German cities.

GERMANY BLUFFS IN TALK OF PEACE, LORD CECIL SAYS

Hopes Thereby to Make Great Britain Relax Blockade, He Declares.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

LONDON, May 13.—In an interview with the Post-Dispatch correspondent, Lord Robert Cecil declared emphatically his majesty's Government had not been approached by Germany through any medium whatever as to the possibility of peace. Only through the German Chancellor's speeches and in the last German note to the United States had this Government been made acquainted with such a desire of Germany.

Asked if any effort, informal or otherwise, had been made by the United States on the subject, he replied negatively, and said: "I don't think the United States or any other neutral would take any steps in that direction unless it felt that it would likely be acceptable to this country and its allies."

Lord Robert had not a very high opinion of Germany's peace feelers, adding: "They are not so insolent and impossible as they were. I believe they are for American consumption. There is certainly no basis of negotiations in them. They might mean anything or nothing. It is pure nonsense to say Germany is willing to withdraw from Belgium, for it probably only means withdrawing soldiers. All this peace talk is German bluffing in the hope, most likely, to make Great Britain relax the blockade, which will not be done. They are, however, striking in the sense that they indicate difficulties in Germany. While I do not say these reports are true, the fact that they are repeated from all sides is convincing."

usual Socialistic argument about the workingman being forced into battle by his "masters," the capitalists.

Union labor—as such—was not in the parade. That fact was made much of by those opposed to today's showing and to increasing national defenses. But there were many union men in line as individuals, it is said, with the various trade or business organizations.

Nine hundred women were behind Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., as grand marshal, with Mrs. Borden Harriman bearing the white and gold banner, under the shadow of the Stars and Stripes.

Suffragettes Among Marchers.

Among those in the suffrage ranks were such leaders as Mrs. John Blair, Mrs. John Corbin, Dr. Alice Gregory, Miss Alice Carpenter; Mrs. Frederick Macmonnies at the head of a company of artists and sculptors; Mrs. John Hays Hammond, Mrs. Morton Smith, daughter of the late Paul Morton; Mrs. Richard Hunt, Miss Ida B. Simonton and Mrs. W. R. Stewart. Miss Spence of the Spence School, leads a band of teachers, and Mrs. Everett Menzies Raynor the Daughters of the Revolution.

Though the anti-suffragists have officially indorsed preparedness and are actively engaged in every phase of the movement, they took no part in the parade. "Believing woman's place is not in the firing line, but outside of it," they established two emergency "first aid" stations to minister to any marcher who might fall by the wayside.

Although Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, the Colonel's wife, and her daughter-in-law and her daughter, Mrs. Richard Derby, were in line, Col. Roosevelt did not march. It is understood that although he approves most enthusiastically of the parade, he thought he should not, for political reasons, be a marcher.

For the official grand stand at Twenty-fourth street, which holds about 2600 persons, there were applications for more than 100,000 tickets. Some of them, placed on sale at the nominal price of 40 cents, were sold for $2 and $3 apiece.

SOLDIERS HURRIED THROUGH CITY EN ROUTE TO BORDER

Some of Field and Coast Artillerymen Have Time to Get Only Part of Equipment.

FIELD CANNON CARRIED

Abundance of Shrapnel Shells on Trains—To Reach Destination Sunday.

Among the hundreds of soldiers who passed through St. Louis last night on their way to the Mexican border was a trainload of the Third Field Artillery, which was dispatched from Reading, Pa., with so short notice that the men were without side arms and full equipment.

"Not even a pistol," said a rangy trooper, who expressed keen desire to get to the border. "Little or no ammunition and without most of the things we'll need down there," he added.

This contingent was under command of Capt. Mortimer, who said he thought their equipment would follow on another train. Battery D received orders to entrain at Reading while it was marching across country to Tobyhanna, Pa., to participate in a militia summer training camp. It had been on the march 14 days and had left all its heavy luggage, including the 45-caliber revolvers with which the field artillery are armed, at its base, to be brought up later.

Captain Meets Relatives.

Another special train over the Pennsylvania last night carried the 112th Coast Artillery, under command of Capt. H. D. Matthews. Capt. Matthews was met at the station by his sister, Mrs. J. T. Elder, of Marissa, Ill., and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Peyton, of 4234 Page boulevard. His train remained only a half hour and his chat with his relatives was brief.

The 112th arrived about 6 o'clock and the men had supper on the train as it stood in the shed. Two troopers were sent out for a big can of coffee and others were delegated to serve the men on little tin plates. They had salmon, bread, pickles, coffee and butter.

These men, whose regular duty is to man the heavy guns of the coast defenses, are going to the border as infantry. They carried "full packs," consisting of rifle, cartridge belt, shelter tent half, bayonet and blanket. They came from Fort Dupont, Delaware City, Del. There were 85 men and two officers in the three sleeping cars.

The Third Field Artillery traveled on a much heavier train. Besides their full complement of 117 men they had seven car loads of horses, and they had their full equipment of field guns.

The field guns and their caissons were loaded on three flat cars. There were four three-inch guns and 18 caissons or ammunition chests. The guns had been newly painted and looked like they were just from the foundry. They were equipped to fire high explosive shrapnel shells.

"These shells," a trooper explained, "are loaded with 250 small balls and they are exploded by a time fuse that can be set for any range. When the shell explodes its contents are scattered in every direction. With a solid shot the range of the guns is greater."

PROPOSES TO CONDEMN 17 BLOCKS FOR BRIDGE TERMINAL

Alderman Haller's Resolution Is Referred to Public Utilities Committee.

A resolution directing the Board of Public Service to prepare a bill providing for the condemnation of 17 city blocks in Mill Creek Valley, at an estimated cost of more than $10,000,000, for public railroad terminals in connection with the Free Bridge, was referred to the Public Utilities Committee by the Board of Aldermen yesterday when Alderman Julius Haller attempted to have it adopted.

Alderman Barney L. Schwartz objected to action on the resolution until the Aldermen have an opportunity to learn its import and effect.

The district described in the bill is between Chouteau avenue and Gratiot street, Seventh and Eighteenth streets, and abuts on the present railroad yards between Gratiot and Poplar streets.

Alderman Haller also introduced a bill amending an ordinance of 1912, by substituting the Director of Streets and Sewers for the Street Commissioner, as a member of a Free Bridge Commission which will have power to issue and revoke permits for the use of the railroad deck of the Free Bridge.

NEGRO BOY SCOUTS ATTACKED

One of Them Is Wounded by Bullet White Youth Fired.

Three negro boy scouts, after leaving the assembly hall at 2343 Randolph street, were surrounded by a crowd of about 15 white boys ranging in age from 13 to 16, at Twenty-third and Walnut streets last night.

"Pipe the Mexicans," shouted one of the whites, whereupon he and his companions began hurling bricks at the negroes. The negroes ran away and when they huddled together in a doorway one of the white boys fired a shot at them. A bullet entered the right thigh of William Burns Roberts, 14 years old, colored, of 2768 Laclede avenue. The white boys scattered and Roberts was taken to the city hospital. Two suspects were arrested.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN POND, ROPE ABOUT HER NECK

Husband and Another Woman Arrested, Declare They Are Innocent of the Crime.

BENTON, Ill., May 13.—The husband of Mrs. Welika Kral, who was found dead in a pond near Christopher with her head crushed and a rope drawn around her neck, is under arrest here, together with Mrs. Geneva Voss, charged with the murder of the woman. Both of the prisoners declare they are innocent. The theory of the officers is that Mrs. Kral was killed that Kral and Mrs. Voss might marry.

Miners going to work found the body of Mrs. Kral. The rope, which had been drawn tightly around her neck, cut the flesh. There were also bruises on her neck.

The police were unable to find any trace of a struggle having occurred on the bank of the pond. It is believed that Mrs. Kral was killed some distance from the pond and her body carried there and thrown in.

Mrs. Voss, who says her home is in Wyoming, came to Christopher a week ago.

WORLD'S FAIR DIRECTORS TO FORM HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Apply for Incorporation Papers and Will Use $100,000 Left Over for Public's Benefit.

A petition to incorporate the Louisiana Purchase Historical Association was filed in the Circuit Court today, the application being signed by practically all of the surviving directors of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

The purpose of the proposed association is to use approximately $100,000 now in the exposition company's treasury for the purpose of endowing a historical museum and library, to be maintained for the public benefit.

The resolution which provided for the building of the Jefferson Memorial also authorized the establishment of such a museum.

The $10,000 if divided among the stockholders would amount to only 6 2-3 cents on each share. Practically all the large stockholders have indorsed the historical museum project.

BRIDE FAINTS AFTER HUSBAND IS TAKEN ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Father Reported to Have Offered Reward for Her Recovery and Arrest of Man She Wed.

Mrs. Lucille Ord, 20 years old, of 2025 Olive street, a bride of 10 weeks, fainted twice after being taken to police headquarters by detectives today.

Mrs. Ord's husband, T. G. Ord, 36, was arrested last night on a telegram from Gatesville, Tex., authorities, saying he was wanted there for bigamy, as it was alleged he had a wife in Houston when he married Miss Lucille Hall.

The reason for taking Mrs. Ord to headquarters was that the police here were informed that her father had offered $100 reward for Ord's arrest and for the recovery of his daughter.

of immediate change here today. President Wilson is cruising down the Chesapeake Bay on the yacht Mayflower and is not expected to return before Sunday or Monday. Secretary Baker is on a week-end trip to Atlantic City and Newark, N. J.

Gen. Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff, who is on his way to Washington from El Paso, is expected here early next week and administration officials probably will confer at length with him before taking up diplomatic discussions with Eliseo Arredondo, Carranza Ambassador-Designate.

War Department authorities emphasized that although Brigadier-General Pershing is concentrating his forces in Mexico and shortening his line to 216 miles, he is ready to dash southward still further if definite reports should be received of Villa or his bandits.

Gen. Carranza has given no indication, Special Agent Rodgers at Mexico City reported today of renewing immediately through diplomatic channels his suggestion that American troops be withdrawn from Mexico. Eliseo Arredondo, his ambassador here, telegraphed yesterday for instructions to guide him in informal conversations he expects to have with Secretary Lansing.

Consular dispatches today said the only Mexican troop movements of importance in the border region were the dispatch of forces from Sonora into the Yaqui Valley where Indians are threatening new outbreaks and the movements of parts of the Saltillo garrison into the Big Bend vicinity to check bandit raids.

Funston Says Alleged Interview With Him Is Wholly False.

EL PASO, Tex., May 13.—Maj. Gen. Funston, before leaving here last night, said that an alleged interview with him, printed in the Brooklyn Eagle, was false in every particular, from top to bottom. He was much exercised over the publication and employed the strongest language at his command to emphasize his denial.

In the purported interview he was quoted as saying that if the army had had co-operation from Washington, Villa would have been dead and the troops back at their posts long ago, and that the whole situation was so bad he had to go into his bathroom and lock the door for opportunity to express his real feelings with safety. An attempt was made to convey the impression that Funston had offered to resign rather than withdraw his forces from Mexico.

SARAH BERNHARDT AT FRONT

PARIS, May 13.—Sarah Bernhardt returned today from the front, where she gave six performances in three days to the soldiers.

"Nothing could be more moving," said Mme. Bernhardt, "than playing before such heroes. It was the incomparable event of my life. The warmth and heartiness of their applause was most touching. I was delighted with my trip. I even persuaded Gen. B—— to take me to a place near Pont-a-Mousson which is usually bombarded by the Germans. The General refused at first, but then consented, saying: 'Since you insist, very well. You are worthy, Madam, to be at the post of danger.' I regard that as the highest compliment that has ever been paid to me in my whole life."

MAJ. LANGHORNE IN DASH TO TRY TO SURPRISE BANDITS

Expected to Be Fifty Miles Into Mexico With Cavalry Squadron by Tonight.

MARATHON, Tex., May 13.—Maj. George T. Langhorne and his flying squadron of the Eighth Cavalry are dashing over the white-sanded hills in Mexico today in an effort to surprise the Mexican raiders of Glenn Springs and Boquillas. They are trying to rescue alive, if possible, Jesse Deemer and two other Americans, John Woodson and F. Balsworth, according to information reaching here today.

The crossing was made yesterday and military men here believe that by tonight Maj. Langhorne will have covered 50 miles in the chase after the bandits, who last were reported at a point 70 miles south of the border from Boquillas, in an abandoned cave.

Close behind Maj. Langhorne is Col. A. C. Macomb and a datchment of the Fourteenth Cavalry, whose business it will be to furnish supplies and forage to Langhorne and to fight off snipers.

PERSHING'S MEN IN LITTLE DANGER

By B. C. UTECHT.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

PERSHING'S HEADQUARTERS, May 5, via Columbus, N. M., May 13.—Despite rumors that the American forces are surrounded, menaced on all sides and in a trap, there is less danger here than along the border.

The American troops are scattered along a line nearly 300 miles long, but no large force of Mexicans could approach without sufficient warning to enable each base to concentrate men at any certain point.

So far in this campaign no artillery has been used, no trenches have been dug except for defense purposes at a few of the bases, and the bayonet has been used in rare instances—chiefly because the enemy ran too fast. Nor have many prisoners been captured in any battle, for the same reason, perhaps.

Mexican Bandits Reported to Have Raided Mining Camp on Border.

TUCSON, Ariz., May 13.—Mexican bandits are reported to have raided Polaris, a mining camp, seven miles below Lochiel, on the border, Thursday, driving out the Americans, who escaped to Nogales in automobiles. Col. Sage, commanding at Nogales, sent a company of infantry and 20 cavalrymen to guard Lochiel, Washington Camp and other towns on the American side.

A telephone message from Washington Camp stated that American soldiers crossed the line and visited Polaris Camp, but the bandits had fled.

ELEPHANT BUTTE IRRIGATION DAM IS COMPLETED

Blocks Canyon of Rio Grande, Forming Greatest Storage Reserve in World.

By Associated Press.

ELEPHANT BUTTE, N. M., May 13.—Work was completed here today on the Elephant Butte Dam, a United States reclamation project, which, by damming the Rio Grande River, forms the greatest storage reserve in the world. Construction began five years ago. The reservoir will feed an irrigation system that will water 185,000 acres of land in New Mexico, Texas and Mexico. The dam blocks a canyon of the Rio Grande, 120 miles north of El Paso.

It is the fifth of the Government's big irrigation projects and will store the entire flow and flood of the river. The reservoir will hold 115,000,000,000 cubic feet of water, which, reclamation service experts say, would cover the State of Delaware to a depth of two feet.

Dam 318 Feet High.

The dam stands 318 feet high and is 1574 feet long. It provides a roadway across the canyon 16 feet wide and at its base is 235 feet thick.

Territory to be irrigated by the reservoir lies in four valleys. For each of these a diversion dam and main canals are being constructed. Twenty-five thousand acres of the land is on the Mexico side of the river, near Juarez. More than half of it is virgin, with a small acreage owned by the Government.

The Government before beginning construction of the dam laid out a town equipped with modern conveniences, as electric lights, water and sewerage, stores, schools, hospitals, hotels and a theater. At times as many as 4000 persons lived in the town, whose government was entirely under the jurisdiction of the engineers. A railway was constructed through 13 miles of rough country to connect the town with a main line railroad.

KILLED ANOTHER'S BRIDE AND SELF BECAUSE HE LOVED HER

Rich Missouri Farmer Leaves Note Revealing Why He Shot Step-Daughter.

WILLIAMSVILLE, Mo., May 13.—A note left by Arthur Goodman, who fatally shot his stepdaughter, Mrs. Evelyn Hawthorne, 17 years old, and killed himself, revealed that his love of the girl was the cause of the rich farmer's act. Goodman declared in the note that he and the girl wished to die together. Mrs. Hawthorne, who lived about two hours after she was shot, denied there was an agreement between them or that she knew of Goodman's intention to kill her, but said the tragedy was caused by his love for her. The girl was a bride of less than a week, having been married to George Hawthorne, a young man of Williamsville, last Sunday. Goodman had one child. In his note he asked his wife to forgive him and told her how to provide for their infant.

"AIDA" IS GIVEN BY PUPILS

650 Sing Choruses of Opera at the Cleveland High.

A chorus of 650 pupils from the five public high schools gave Verdi's "Aida" in concert form last night at the Grover Cleveland High School, under the direction of E. L. Coburn, supervisor of music in the public schools. They sang the choruses of the opera, while the solo parts were taken by Mrs. Blanche Skrainka as Aida, Miss Olga Hambuechen as Amneris, James J. Rohan as Radames, Louis Templéman as Amonrasro, J. J. Kessler as Ramphis and Frank Ingalls as Pharaoh.

The opera has been studied this year in all the high schools as part of the music course, and several thousands of pupils have been brought into intimate acquaintance with Verdi's greatest work. The accompaniments were played upon an organ by Miss Teresa Finn and upon two grand pianos by Mrs. E. B. Mayse and D. H. Cleland. A large and well-pleased audience was present.

LOTTERY TICKET SALE CHARGED

Saloon Keeper Arrested as Result of Another's Arrest.

Thomas J. O'Meare, a saloon keeper at Twenty-first and Randolph streets, was arrested this morning on a warrant charging him with selling lottery tickets. It resulted from the arrest of a man, yesterday, accused of stealing a set of harness. When he was searched at the station, two lottery tickets of 25 cents apiece were found on him. He stated that he had purchased the tickets from O'Meara.

The accusation of the theft could not be substantiated and the man was released. He was booked as a witness against O'Meara.

ACTION IN BOND CASES

Circuit Attorney Finds Three Men on Forfeited Papers Have Property.

Circuit Attorney Harvey announced today that an investigation of bond forfeitures which have not been collected has resulted in the discovery that F. O. Lange, Morris Gesser and Harry Anastas, each on a bond for $800, have property.

The cases in which Lange and Gesser are the bondsmen are pending before the Governor. The Circuit Attorney will await the action of the Governor in those cases. He will notify the Sheriff to proceed against Anastas.

Fighters on Canoe Trip Missing.

NEWDORP, N. Y., May 12.—Search was instituted by the police of Staten Island tonight for two Chicago pugilists, Joseph Welling and Andre Anderson, who went canoeing early in the day and failed to return. Welling, a lightweight, and Anderson, a heavyweight, had been in training at a camp here.

EDISON INDORSES ROOSEVELT FOR NEXT PRESIDENT

Believes Colonel Is "Absolutely the Only Man" That Should Be Considered.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., May 13.—Thomas A. Edison, inventor, head of President Wilson's Naval Consulting Board, and close friend of Henry Ford, is out for Roosevelt. He declares unequivocally for the Colonel in a letter to Guy Emerson, secretary of the Roosevelt Non-Partisan League, made public here today. Edison writes:

"Orange, N. Y., May 10, 1916.—Mr. Guy Emerson, Secretary Roosevelt Non-Partisan League, 12 Vanderbilt avenue, New York.—Answering your question as to my views of Col. Roosevelt for our next President, I would say that I believe he is absolutely the ONLY man that should be considered at this crucial period. He has more real statesmanship, a better grasp of the most important needs of this country, and a greater executive ability to handle the big international problems that will arise at the close of the war, than all the other candidates put together. His energy, capacity and vast experience in large affairs of state and nation for many years, together with his great patriotism and his intense Americanism, and his great knowledge in all lines of human endeavor, make him decidedly the most striking figure in American life. Yours very truly,

"THOMAS A. EDISON."

The Colonel answered as follows:

"Mr. Dear Mr. Edison—I am so profoundly touched by your letter concerning me that I am going to ask the Roosevelt Non-Partisan League to give it to me. I wish to hand it over to my children.

"There is literally no one whom I would be so anxious to have say what you have said of me.

"With hearty thanks, Faithfully yours, THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

REPORT WOMAN WAS EXECUTED IN AUSTRIA OFFICIALLY DENIED

Daughter of Bohemian Independence Agitator Is Said, However, to Be Under Arrest.

John Schwegel, consul of Austria-Hungary in St. Louis, has asked the Post-Dispatch to print the substance of an official statement issued by the Austro-Hungarian embassy, regarding the case of Miss Alice G. Masaryk. It was recently reported that Miss Masaryk had been executed by order of the Austrian Government. The embassy states that it has inquired by wireless, and has been assured from Vienna that the rumor of an execution is without foundation. The young woman is under arrest, the Government stated in its reply, and her preliminary trial is pending.

Miss Masaryk, according to this statement, is the daughter of a well-known agitator for the creation of an independent Bohemian kingdom, under the protection of Russia. The young woman was a teacher before her arrest, which is supposed to have been on a charge of political agitation. The exact degree of the offense charged is not known to the embassy, which states that "it may be that the offense is not of such serious nature that capital punishment will come into consideration."

REFUSES TO ISSUE WARRANT FOR RICHARD SEEBERGER

Prosecutor Decides There Is No Evidence of Wrong Doing Against Webster Groves Man.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Thomas refused yesterday afternoon to issue a warrant against Richard Seeberger, 50 years old, of Webster Groves, who was arrested Thursday evening as he was entering a wineroom at Fifteenth and Market streets, with Miss Hattie Brown, 16 years old, of 5108 Page boulevard.

Seeberger and Mrs. Rachel Brown, mother of the girl, are involved in litigation at Clayton over some land. The girl was in court at Clayton Wednesday, she says, when Seeberger, asked her to meet him in the evening. She consulted her mother's attorney, Seneca Taylor, and was told by him to keep the appointment. She did so, and detectives who were waiting arrested Seeberger.

Seeberger told the police he believed his arrest was a frameup. He said Miss Brown told him she was singing in a cabaret and asked him to come and hear her.

Thomas, when the information was laid before him by the police, decided that there was no evidence to justify the prosecution of Seeberger.

THREE MORE WOMEN APPOINTED ON THE POLICE FORCE

Will Not Wear Uniforms or Badge for Present—Will Be Without Power to Make Arrests.

Three additional policewomen were appointed by the Police Board yesterday to reinforce Miss Laura Kinkead, who has been serving five months. They are Miss Nellie Quick, 4163A Laclede avenue; Mrs. Mary Gibson, 3716 Marcus avenue, and Mrs. Margaret A. Healy, 6918 Etzel avenue. They will work under the direction of Chief Young, who will assign them to Union Station, department stores, dance halls and such places. They will wear no uniform or badge and for the present will not have the power of making arrests.

Mrs. Gibson was formerly matron at the city hospital. Miss Quick has been connected with the State Employment Bureau.

Mrs. William Kennedy of 4401 Evans avenue was appointed a matron for the Central District holdover, to assist Mrs. Nora Fitzgerald, appointed a few weeks ago, in looking after the women prisoners there.

AUTO BUSSES WILL BE RUNNING SOON IN FOREST PARK

Aldermen Pass Ordinance Appropriating $15,000 for Purchase of 3 Cars.

An appropriation of $15,000 for the purchase of three automobile busses, made yesterday by the Board of Aldermen, will enable Park Commissioner Cunliff to provide transportation on a 15-minute schedule between the main entrances of Forest Park and such points of interest as the Art Museum, zoo and athletic fields. The machines will be purchased this month and will be in operation early in June, Commissioner Cunliff promises.

The Aldermen enacted rules at the last session governing the operation of an autobuss line in Forest Park, but in passing the budget last month, the appropriation for busses was stricken out on the ground that it was an unnecessary luxury and the city was confronted with a deficit.

A fare of 5 cents may be charged for a single trip in the park, under the regulating ordinance, and Commissioner Cunliff is empowered to reduce this rate. Cunliff said he would make the fare as low as possible, aiming only to provide enough revenue for operation, maintenance and replacement.

The busses can make a trip encircling the park in about 45 minutes, it was learned by experimenting on two Sundays last autumn. This will enable the city to provide a 15 minute schedule all day Sunday and during rush hours on other days. Stopping places will be marked by sign posts to be erected, and will include every important entrance to the park.

The first rate schedule will permit passengers to make a complete round trip for 5 cents provided they remain in the busses.

MAN WHO WORE SON'S SILK SHIRT FINED FOR FIGHTING

Charles Smith Jr. Testifies Father Objected to Taking Off Fine Raiment.

Wearing a silk shirt and a tailor-made suit belonging to his teamster son, Charles Smith, a shoeworker, went out to look for a job. He didn't find it, but he was so pleased with the feel of the silk shirt and the set of the suit that he demurred when the son, Charles Smith Jr., returned to their home at 2610 Geyer avenue and demanded that he take them off.

The resulting family fight led to the senior Smith being fined $500, by Provisional Judge O'Connor, in police court today.

The son told of his effort to induce his father to doff the fine raiment which had improved his personal appearance but had failed to get a job for him.

"After a great deal of arguing he took off the coat, but when I tried to get him to take off the pants he hit me with a salt jar," said the junior Smith. "Then my mother got into the argument and he tried to hit her."

Mrs. Smith testified that her husband was quarrelsome and that she had had him up as a defendant in police court 16 or 18 times in their 26 years of married life.

YOAKUM TELLS HOW HE PLANNED TO DIVIDE FUSE FEE

Sister-in-Law of J. W. Allison, Copromoter, Down for $105,000 of $475,000 Commission.

GAVE ALLISON $25,000

Three Others to Get $90,000, He Testifies at Canadian Graft Inquiry.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OTTAWA, Ont., May 13.—Benjamin F. Yoakum of New York is expected to continue his testimony here next Wednesday in connection with the Kyte charges concerning the fuse contract let by the Canadian Shell Commission to Yoakum and his associates. Yoakum's direct examination was not nearly completed at adjournment yesterday, when he departed for New York.

Yoakum bared the entire fuse transaction and the incidents leading up to it, connecting J. Wesley Allison, a friend of Sir Sam Hughes, Canadian Minister of Militia, with the negotiations for the contract, Allison to share in the benefits.

Yoakum, who was largely instrumental in getting the fuse order and was to receive a large remuneration for that work, but who had only a small interest in the American Ammunition Co., which was formed to fill the contract, declined to say who his associates were, except to volunteer that none were Canadians.

E. D. Cadwell, one of the largest stockholders of the ammunition company, who preceded Yoakum as a witness, said in his estimony he had been informed that one of the persons interested with Yoakum was a Mr. Shonts of New York.

Yoakum to Get $475,000.

Yoakum said in his testimony that of the $1,000,000 commission which was to be paid for obtaining the fuse contract, he was to receive $475,000, and this he was to divide with Allison for Allison's assistance in the negotiations. Allison, however, had given instructions for the payment of his share to other persons, Yoakum said.

Accordi. to Yoakum, who said he would produce the papers, the payments were to be made as follows:

To Mable Edwards, sister-in-law and secretary to Allison, $105,0...

To Maj. George Washington Stephens, Montreal, $10,000.

To Col. William McBain, a protege of Gen. Sir Sam Hughes, $30,000.

To Eugene Lignanti, $50,000.

The money, however, is being paid as received from the War Office following the delivery of fuses, and so far only $61,717 has been remitted. Out of this pro rata payments have been made as follows: To Stephens, $1299; McBain, $3899; Lignanti, $6500, and Miss Edwards, $16,809.

Tells His History.

Yoakum began with a detailed history of himself and was very frank in telling of his relations with Allison. He said that while he had known him casually before, his business relations with Allison began only in February.

At that time the medium in bringing them together was H. J. Mackel, an Ottawa man, who had helped engineer the big Russian shell order for the Canada Car Co.

Shortly after meeting Allison, Yoakum and he created two corporations, the British-American Co. and the Allison Supply Co. They were designed to get after war orders, but subsequently they were disbanded.

Yoakum said he afterward heard of another concern, the J. W. Allison Co., formed to take a part in the Canada Car's Russian order, but he was not interested in it.

Yoakum next told of having paid $25,000 to Allison for "his association," and afterwards an agreement was made whereby in respect of any commissions obtained Allison and we were to be on a fifty-fifty basis.

Conferred With Hughes.

Last April he went to Allison and interested him in proposed cartridge contracts for large amounts. He came to Ottawa and met Gen. Sir Sam Hughes. Allison, who was to share in any commission, being with the Minister of Militia at the time.

The cartridge proposition did not go through, but on the occasion of their visit Yoakum heard of the fuse contract, and was "tipped off to go after it." He was told that the price which he would have to figure against was $1.90. Then he detailed proceedings leading up to the contract which confirmed Cadwell's evidence.

Asked if he had informed Gen. Bertram and Gen. Hughes of his understanding with Allison, Yoakum said: "No; that was our business."

One of the parties who had in the earlier evidence been mentioned as having given information leading to the fuse contract was J. B. Craven, who resides in New York, but belongs to the firm of T. McAvity of St. John, N. B.

Yoakum swore that Allison went to him and urged that Craven be settled with. Thirty thousand dollars was set apart for Craven, Yoakum explaining that he was "looking to the future." Allison having represented that through the McAvity firm there was a prospect of big foreign orders.

The $30,000 was to be deducted from the $475,000 to be divided between Allison and Yoakum.

Cadwell in his testimony stated that the assets of the American Ammunition Co. consisted of advances from the Shell Committee, some fixtures, $500,000 unpaid subscriptions and, most valuable of all, credit.

Yoakum had only $20,000 stock in the company and E. W. Bassick none. It was then elicited from the witness that his firm had sublet contracts for the completed article.

Price Kept Secret.

Cadwell was asked what the prices of the subcontracts had been. The witness reply was that this as a matter of private business was something he would prefer not to answer. I. F. Hellmuth, counsel, objected that Great Britain and her allies had received valuable assistance from American manufacturers. If details of their business were to be investigated it might not help the delivery of such munitions.

After Sir William Meredith, one of the Judges, had stated that the only attitude of the commission as to the advisability of certain kinds of evidence was that information should not come out which would enable the German spies to injure plants, Caldwell gave evidence as to the reduction of fuse prices to his firm by the Imperial Munitions Board to $2.34. He admitted that at $2.34 his company was making a profit, but not an exorbitant one. The price of $2.34, of course, would not warrant the 10 per cent commission paid on the original $4.50 price; it would not pay 5 per cent.

$1,000,000 Commission.

Cadwell stated that in the early stage of the negotiations Bassick had suggested the first thing to do would be to set aside a commission and suggested 10 per cent. As a matter of fact $1,000,000 which was slightly less, had been agreed on. About $100,000 in all had so far been paid under the agreement for commissions.

Cadwell then gave interesting evidence as to quarrels between Yoakum and Bassick over the amount of commission to be divided, Bassick claiming a large amount because Gen. Bertram's letter was to him. He had understood that Bassick and Yokum might have been under delusions as regards obtaining the contract, but did not know much about the details.

Girl Who Eloped With Lawyer and Was Married in St. Charles

MRS. JAMES E. DEE. —Murillo Portrait.

TIRE OF WAITING FOR WEDDING DAY, SO COUPLE ELOPE

James E. Dee and Miss Emma K. Thuener Go to St. Charles and Marry.

James E. Dee, a lawyer of 4423 Cottage avenue, and Miss Emma K. Thuener of 13 Windermere place grew tired of waiting for their wedding day, which had been set for June 28, and went to St. Charles Thursday and were married there.

The monotony of waiting, according to Dee, was the only reason that the wedding took place ahead of the time set. There had been no formal announcement of their engagement, he said, but he had the consent of Miss Thuener's father, Charles Thuener, without which, he says, he would not have married. He did mention to his sister, Margaret, that they were to be married Saturday, but Thursday suited them better.

On their return from St. Charles they went to their separate homes. Last night Dee was at the Thuener home when inquiries caused them to confess that they had been married, and, Dee says, they received the family blessing.

When Dee was called on the telephone this morning by a Post-Dispatch reporter and asked to tell about the wedding, he said: "I don't know anything about it. It is all a mistake. Good-by."

When he was seen at his office he told all about it. He and Miss Thuener, he said, were schoolmates at the Cote Brilliante School and the Yeatman High School.

Dee graduated from St. Louis University Law School four years ago. He is 25. His wife is 22.

18 WOMEN COURTED BY BLUE BEARD OF HUNGARY MISSING

Three Bodies Found in Room and Show He Had Promised to Wed 74.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York Evening Post.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, May 13.—That Bela Kiss, the Hungarian Bluebeard, was engaged to, or at least had promised to marry, no less than 74 women, was disclosed by letters taken today from his former housekeeper, with whom he had left them to be given to the authorities in case of his death.

According to Budapest dispatches, the police already have the names of 18 women he courted, not one of whom has been found, and some are known to have been long missing. It is alleged that Kiss confined his attention to servants or peasant women, who had saved a little money.

Seven mysterious five-foot, tin-covered, sealed cases were found in Kiss' storeroom in the village of Cinkota. Four of them have been opened. Three contained the bodies of as many women, each fully dressed, the bodies wound about, trussed up with thin rope, a tough cord around each neck and a handkerchief in every mouth. The fourth case contained several women's dresses. One dress has been recognized as having belonged to Grete Toth, 20 years old, a cook, who disappeared 10 years ago. Another dress was identified by Vivian Stefaulot as that of a long-lost daughter.

Only one body has been identified, that of Katherine Vargo, a servant, who always carried her little savings of $100. She disappeared four years ago.

Corp. Majda testified that he saw Kiss die in a hospital in Valkovo, Servia. Another witness swore that he heard from Kiss last November, months after he was reported dead in Servia.

Kiss was tall, had a blond beard, was 39 years old, and it is said women fell in love with him on sight. It is presumed that he exerted something like hypnotic influence on them.

The police believe they already have evidence pointing to the murder of at least eight women, and they have reason to believe that many more were his victims.

SHE WILL WED BANK TELLER NEXT MONTH

MISS MARTHA E TOENNISHOFF

Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Toennishoff of 1918 Victor street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Martha E. Toennishoff to John A. Dufaux of 2517 South Twelfth street. The marriage will take place early next month in St. Agnes Church.

Dufaux is paying teller at the Night and Day Bank. He and Miss Toennishoff went through grammar and high school together. After a trip the couple will reside on South King's highway.

$30,000 PUT UP FOR ASSASSINATION OF 'MYSTIC MONK'

Story Told by Refugee Priest Bears on Report of Rasputin's Death.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The report received Thursday by wireless from Berlin through the Overseas News Agency that Gregory Rasputin, the Russian monk who is reputed to have wielded a powerful and almost mystic influence over Emperor Nicholas, had been assassinated, is coincident with the receipt here by the Associated Press of mail advices from its correspondent at Christiania, Norway, disclosing details of a plot to murder Rasputin.

They were revealed by Heliodorus, the "Mad Monk of Tsaritsyn," a fantastic leader of the masses of the Volga region who has figured prominently in the Rasputin case.

It is disclosed that Heliodorus, who disappeared from Russia some time ago, is a refugee in Christiania. Although once on the best of terms with Rasputin, he finally turned against him and denounced him as wielding a criminal influence and undertook to warn the imperial court of this "dangerous fiend." The result of this attack on the Emperor's favorite was that Heliodorus himself was cast into a monastery prison from which he was released only after having renounced being a monk.

To avoid further persecution he escaped to Sweden in a woman's garb in August, 1914, and is now living quietly in Christiania. According to Heliodorus, a representative of the Russian Minister of the Interior, Khvostoff, arrived in Christiania last January and proposed that Heliodorus become party to a conspiracy to assassinate the Mystic Monk. Khvostoff's envoy is said to have declared that Rasputin was working for a separate peace between Germany and Russia and being "bought by wealthy Jews," had secured for the Jews great contracts on supplies for the army."

Heliodorus, desiring to learn the whole plot, posed as willing to enter the conspiracy, and signed a contract to engage a band of murderers for 60,000 rubles ($30,000).

One of the ladies in waiting at the court was to be a party to the conspiracy, and give the signal by telephone for Rasputin to come to the court. An automobile was to be in readiness for Heliodorus to escape as soon as he had seen his hired murderers execute the plot.

It was a part of the bargain, it is declared by Heliodorus, that the Minister of the Interior, Khvostoff, would procure an amnesty, so that Heliodorus could return to Russia.

On Feb. 12 Heliodorus received a telegram saying the 60,000 rubles were in a bank ready to be paid as soon as the plot was carried out. He then decided to reveal the whole affair, and sent his wife with a written account of the plot to Petrograd, where she delivered it to the Empress.

The wife later sent word that she had already known the details of the affairs. It seems that the mistress of Raschievisky, the agent sent to Christinia by Khvostoff, had betrayed the conspirators.

Minister Khvostoff was forced to resign, but according to Heliodorus, who has laid the whole story bare to the Norwegian public, conditions at the imperial court are such that nothing but a revolution can clear the air.

METHODISTS KEEP "OPEN SHOP" PLAN IN BOOK CONCERN

Decline to Give Unions Preference; Would Let Members Dance, Attend Theaters.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., May 13.—By a vote of 447 to 280 the Methodist General Conference today eliminated that part of the report of the commission on social service which declared that a preference should be given union labor in all matters affecting employment "insofar as its methods are just, and insofar as the rights of unorganized men are not infringed upon."

The proposal in the report involved abandoning the "open shop" policy which has prevailed in the publishing plants of the Methodist Book Concern.

Members who play cards, dance and attend the theaters will no longer be liable to expulsion if recommendations made by a subcommittee of the general conference, which has been considering the question of amusements are adopted by the committee of the state of the church and later by the conference. The report was offered to the main committee late yesterday and after an acrimonious discussion, action was deferred until Monday.

By a vote of 12 to 8, the subcommittee recommended the elimination from the book of discipline of the clause prohibiting these amusements, and offered as a substitute an additional paragraph in which warning is made against these diversions. The effect of the proposed change is to remove the absolute prohibition, but to place the church on record as still strongly opposed to these forms of amusement. A minority report was submitted advising the retention of the paragraph as it now stands.

It was maintained by those favoring removal of the restriction that the penalty is not enforced in any church and that the effect upon the young people will be much greater if a provision that cannot be enforced is withdrawn, and a general warning issued that the church does not sanction "dancing, playing at games of chance, attending theaters, horse races, circuses, dancing parties or patronizing dancing schools." Opposition to the change is based on the allegation that it means the church is "letting down the bars."

BILLY SUNDAY PROMISES TO COME HERE CONDITIONALLY

Spirit of Harmony Must Prevail at Time Late Is Fixed Which at Present Is Not Definite.

KANSAS CITY, May 13.—Billy Sunday last night gave a conditional promise that he would hold a series of meetings in St. Louis, but would give no assurance of a definite date for St. Louis within the next two years unless a transfer of dates can be arranged with some other city.

The St. Louis delegation of about 60 ministers and laymen attended last night's Sunday meeting in a body. At the close of the meeting "Ma" Sunday handed to the delegation the following note:

"We will accept the invitation extended by St. Louis if the spirit of unity and harmony which now exists continues up to the time when it would be possible for us to give St. Louis a date."

The St. Louis delegation believes there is a chance to get Boston's date, which is scheduled to begin Oct. 24. The reason for this hope is that there have been rumors that serious opposition to the Billy Sunday movement has developed in Boston.

Sunday's son and business manager, George Sunday, is in Boston arranging for the meeting. If he should find great opposition, it is believed, the evangelist might be induced to transfer the date to St. Louis. The members of the St. Louis delegation pledged themselves to raise a $30,000 guarantee fund for Sunday and pay the usual share of the expense.

RECALL OF MAYOR IS SOUGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 13.—Petitions for the recall of James Rolph, Jr., Mayor of San Francisco, were being circulated today by followers of Eugene Schmitz, former Mayor, who was removed from office when indicted at the time of the so-called graft prosecution. He was unsuccessful candidate for Mayor at the last election.

The recall petition gives a dozen reasons for Rolph's recall including the charge that the Mayor holds his office illegally because of alleged election frauds.

CARRANZA ORDERS MEXICAN TEACHERS IN U. S. HOME

45 Maintained by Government at Boston Advised to Sail From New York Tuesday.

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—It is reported here that Gen. Carranza has cabled all the Mexican school teachers now visiting in the United States to return immediately to Mexico. Most of the teachers are said to be in New England.

Gen. Obregon, Minister of War, is expected to arrive in Mexico City early Sunday morning.

BOSTON, May 13.—Forty-five Mexican teachers, maintained by their Government here for the last 10 months for the purpose of studying American educational methods, received orders last night to return to Mexico on the steamer Monterey which is due to sail from New York Tuesday morning. The message contained no explanation. About 100 other Mexican teachers are understood to be in various cities of the country.

CHICAGO TO TAKE CARE OF ALL

Convention Bureau Denies Hotel Accommodations Are Inadequate.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Reports that hotel accommodations for convention week are inadequate were denied today by George M. Spangler Jr., manager of the convention bureau of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Spangler said that hotel accommodations could be guaranteed for every visitor who desired to visit Chicago at that time.

Two Women Hurt Leaving Cars.

Mrs. Anna Dofing, 67 years old, of 2203 Sullivan avenue fell from a Grand car at Sullivan avenue last night as she was alighting. Her left arm was broken and she was cut on the head.

Mrs. Valeria Czerneckl, 23 years old, of 1403 North Ninth street and her 11 year-old baby were thrown from a Lee car at Ninth and O'Fallon streets when the conductor closed the door as she was getting out. She and the baby were bruised.

Baker to Be Convention Chairman.

DAYTON, O., May 13.—Former Gov. James M. Cox yesterday received a letter from President Wilson giving his consent for Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, Secretar of War, to act as chairman of the Ohio Democratic State convention. President Wilson had announced a policy of having no Cabinet officer participate in state conventions.

LEVEE BOND ISSUE FAVORED

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 13.—At its annual meeting in Bridge Junction, across the river from this city, the St. Francis Levee Board adopted a resolution providing for a bond issue of $1,500,000.

The fund thus approved is designed to be added to the $4,500,000 which is anticipated through Congressional appropriation for use on the levees in the St. Francis district within a period of five years, the local issue to be employed during the same period. The $6,000,000 thus expected will be sufficient to put the entire system of 160 miles into standard proportions and bring security against a flood stage of 51 feet on the river gauge here.

MAKING HOSE FOR SCOTLAND

Alabama Factory Works Day and Night on Foreign Orders.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., May 13.—The Rosenau Hosiery Mills have received an order from Scotland for 60,000 pairs of hose, and orders are being filled for other foreign countries.

As a result of the demand the mills are running day and night, and have increased their force from 200 to 465, and the weekly pay roll by 150 per cent.

GEORGIAN MAKES $6195 ON PEANUT CROP OF 150 ACRES

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 13.—Elisha Lott of Coffee County, Ga., obtained a net profit of $6195 from 150 acres planted to peanuts last year. This fact appears from a detailed statement covering the crop on file in the office of G. B. Eunice, farm demonstration agent for the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad at Douglas.

Lott states that he used the McGovern variety of peanut and grew no other crop on his 150 acres. The seed cost per acre was $3; preparation, $1; planting, 50 cents; amount of seed, 4 bushels; method, corn planter; shelled; fertilizer, $4; lime, $5; broadcast before planting.

Figuring the cost of cultivation, harvest picking, land rental and other charges, Lott found that it cost him $26.50 per acre. The value of the crop per acre was $67.80. The net value $41.30.

After the vines had been taken up Lott turned 300 head of hogs into the peanut field, and they gained on an average of 75 pounds per hog. The hay from the field was a source of additional income.

Inland Navigation Co., Inc., Takes A $2400.00 Loss to Keep a Promise

River Traffic has been neglected so long that it has been very difficult to secure competent stevedores in St. Louis. And because of the record cargo the unloading at St. Louis required 48 instead of 4 hours.

These are matters that will be adjusted, soon, and in the meanwhile rather than delay shipments and in order to leave on schedule time, the Inland Navigation Company is forced to ship 1000 tons of freight by rail at a direct loss of $2400.00.

Determined to maintain schedules—INCO 1 sails Saturday at 5 P. M., leaving 1000 tons of freight behind to be forwarded at once by rail. Of course in shipping by rail we can not give the same speed and safety as with INCO 1 but such rail shipment is the best available.

INCO Service Stands for Reliability

We gladly shoulder this loss because we realize that this is necessary to make good on our promises and to fully protect the profits that our customers enjoy by shipping with the Inland Navigation Company.

5658 ENGAGED IN MANUFACTURES IN GRANITE CITY

Special Census Report Shows 39 Places Turn Out Products Worth $17,903,000.

SALARIES ARE $872,000

It Is Estimated That 1350 Persons Moved Into City During 1914.

The Granite City Commercial Club Publicity Committee has, through the United States Census Bureau, compiled a statement of the general results of the census of manufacturers for Granite City. The figures, with reference to manufacturers, excluded the hand trades, the building trades and the neighborhood industries, and took account only of establishments conducted under the factory system. Statistics were not collected for establishments having products for the census valued at less than $500, except that reports were taken of establishments idle a portion of the census year, or which began operation during that year, and whose products for such reason were valued at less than $500.

The word "establishment," as used in the census reports, means more than one mill or plant, provided they are owned or controlled or operated by a single individual, partnership, corporation or operator, and are located in Granite City.

The reports were taken for the calendar year ending Dec. 31, 1914, whenever the system of bookkeeping permitted the figures for that period to be secured, but when the fiscal year of the establishments differed from the calendar year, a report was obtained for the operation of that establishment for the fiscal year filling most largely within the year 1914.

It was estimated in the report that the population of Granite City on July 1, 1914, was 14,000. There were 39 establishments reported within the corporate limits of the city. The capital invested was $18,987,000, exclusive of the value of rented property, where there was such. The report also excludes equipment, which was employed in the conduct of manufacturing enterprises. The cost of the material used was $9,450,000.

The value of products amount, according to the report, to $17,903,000. This represents the actual selling value at the plant.

The summary for Granite City for 1914, covered by the extensive examinations and subsequent reports, is as follows: Number of establishments, 39; persons engaged in manufacturers, 5658; proprietors and firm members, 48; salaried employes, 560; wage earners, average number, 5050; primary horsepower, 17,556; capital, $18,867,000; services, $4,866,000; salaries, $872,000; wages, $3,994,000; material, $9,845,000; value of products, $17,903,000.

It was shown by the committee's report that more than three hundred new residences had been constructed in Granite City during the year ending Dec. 31, 1914, and that an estimated number of 1350 persons had located in the city during the year.

Two new churches and a Masonic temple, together with a public school building, were erected during the year 1914. Fourteen new store buildings were constructed.

The most important manufacturing addition to the city was the enlargement of the Granite City rolling mill of the National Enameling and Stamping Co., the capacity of which was doubled by the additional plant. Every plant in the city has been remodeled, and although not running full force at the close of 1914, are running to capacity at present.

SALES MANAGERS ATTEND BARBECUE AT SALINA, KAN.

St. Louisans Entertained Jointly With State Bankers—Depart for Tour of Wheat Belt.

SALINA, Kan., May 13.—The St. Louis managers' special train arrived here last evening just in time for the barbecue given for the State Bankers' Association meeting as a closing feature.

They enjoyed a vaudeville entertainment at Convention Hall in the evening prepared for the bankers and the St. Louis band enlivened the program with several numbers. Addresses were made by several of the sales managers.

The special train was met at the Union Station, which has just been opened, by members of the Chamber of Commerce in motor cars and escorted up town. The special departed this morning for a tour of the Kansas wheat belt.

The Continued Success of Many Business Ventures Can be Traced to the Selection of Capable Help.

Some employers make a virtue of over-patience with incompetents — of charity and kindliness for the men and women who MAR and MIX and MUTILATE the best plans.

The so-called "hard-headed business men" know that over-patience with bunglers is not a genuine kindness to them nor a "square deal" for the business itself. A few "marplot" employes can tax a business to a breaking point.

Then, there is the argument that emphasizes the necessity of securing NEW BLOOD, new "help," in all businesses —from time to time the bringing in of men with new visions and greater enthusiasm.

Whatever may be believed the need, Post-Dispatch Wants are unexcelled in bringing men—a selection from which to choose "men who fit." Last month the Post-Dispatch printed 14,472 Help Wanted Ads, 2232 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers COMBINED.

REVIEWS OF NEW BOOKS

SIXTY MODERN PLAYS.

TWO volumes of nearly 300 pages each are crowded with valuable matter in "The Masterpieces of Modern Drama," edited by John A. Pierce, under the supervision of Brander Matthews of Columbia University. One volume contains condensed translations of foreign-language plays, the other is devoted to the work of American and English playwrights. Each volume contains 30 plays, not more than two of any author's plays appearing, with the exception of Ibsen, who has three.

In preparing such volumes, the first and most important task is that of selection. In the case of the volume of plays in English the list will probably come as near meeting general approval as any list of the 30 best plays could be expected to do. This list, which seems worth printing in full, is as follows:

Lord Tennyson's "Becket," Oscar Wilde's "Importance of Being Earnest" and "Lady Windermere's Fan;" Pinero's "Second Mrs. Tanqueray" and "The Thunderbolt;" Henry Arthur James' "Michael and His Lost Angel" and "The Liars;" C. Haddon Chambers' "The Tyranny of Tears;" Stephen Phillips' "Herod;" Shaw's "You Never Can Tell" and "Caesar and Cleopatra;" Esmond's "When We Were Twenty-One;" Barrie's "Admirable Crichton;" Singe's "Riders to the Sea;" Granville Barker's "The Voysey Inheritance;" Galsworthy's "Justice" (six years old, but a New York success of the last few weeks); Louis N. Parker's "Disraeli;" Githa Sowerby's "Rutherford and Son;" Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah;" William Gillette's "Secret Service;" Fitch's "The Moth and the Flame" and "The Truth;" William C. De Mille's "Strongheart;" Langdon Mitchell's "The New York Idea;" William Vaughn Moody's "The Great Divide;" Gus Thomas' "Witching Hour" and "As a Man Thinks;" Walter's "Paid in Full;" Percy Mackaye's "The Scarecrow;" and David Belasco's "The Return of Peter Grimm."

Of the omissions in the selected list of authors the names of Charles Rann Kennedy, of Charles Klein and Hall Caine are conspicuous. Caine, whose plays are made from books, may have been omitted for that reason, as it will be noticed that the list contains no dramatizations of novels. "The Little Minister," "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" and "Bella Donna" were doubtless excluded by the same rule, which is a good one. But either "The Music Master" or "The Servant in the House" would seem as well deserving of a place as Wilde's "Importance of Being Earnest," with its puerile plot, hinging on a proper name, or Fitch's "Moth and the Flame."

The work of condensation has been well done, and the best passages of dialogue are given, the remainder of the action being summarized. An introductory paragraph sums up each play, and the writer has treated most of the dramas as problem plays, so that this paragraph usually ends with an interrogation point. An introduction by Prof. Matthews appears in each volume. (Doubleday, Page & Co.)

PEACE, PEACE, BUT THERE IS NO PEACE.

THE publishers are busy bringing forth books dealing mostly with war and occasionally a book dealing with peace. One of the best of the last named class is "Ways to Lasting Peace," by Prof. David Star Jordan. Perhaps the militarists, a rather growing party in the United States, will smile at the idea of of any one writing about peace amidst the European conflagration which has been threatening even this country. But it is well to remind such thoughtless persons in the words of Dr. Fried that "pacifists are not fireman called in to put out a fire which was not of their setting. They are rather agents of fire-proof material for construction which, if generally used, would make a conflagration impossible."

Prof. Jordan offers such material for state and world making. He feels that lasting peace can not be gained by larger armaments, but by mutual understanding which will bring mutual respect and co-operation. It is a book worth reading even in these days of blood and iron and hysteria. It might act as a sedative upon the many who need one very badly. (Bobbs Merrill).

MAKING MONEY OUT OF MEN.

H. L. GANTT, well-known as a leader in the modern "efficiency movement," has incorporated a series of lectures delivered before some of the classes at Yale University, into a book he calls, "Industrial Leadership." Of course, the theory is that the worker who lends himself to this "efficiency" business profits by it in the long run. The workers, however, have been suspicious of this movement. Too much was promised them. They usually are wary of employers bearing gifts. Centuries have given them some sad experiences. It is interesting, to see, however, what a fine thing this efficiency plan would be if operated in a co-operative system of production and exchange. It would save time, and time is life in a properly organized society. (Yale University Press).

NOT ALTOGETHER CONVINCING.

ARTHUR GLEASON, who served for a time in the Belgian hospital corps close to the first line trenches, has written his impressions of the German invasion in a booklet called "Golden Lads." The name comes from the pet designation for the French marines from Brittany who took part in the fighting for King Albert.

Gleason in trying to make out a strong case against Germany goes too far. He is too venomous. He says he SAW the things he is writing about, but there are several ways of seeing things.

It will be a hard thing to convince neutral Americans that German soldiers maliciously ran their bayonets through the backs of girl children. Such a thing might have happened in an isolated case where a Uhlan suddenly went mad, but Gleason would like us to believe that most Germans are Attilas.

What Gleason has to say he says graphically and his book is well worth reading, but the volume would be of much greater historical value if Gleason had used his head more and his heart less. (The Century Co.)

THE DAREDEVIL

By MARIA THOMPSON DAVIESS
THE REILLY & BRITTON CO

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

ANDREWS, Captain L. C.—"Fundamentals of Military Service." Written for the general public to show how futile it is to expect an army to achieve discipline and efficiency "in a moment of time."

FRASER, J. F.—"Russia of Today." A newspaper man here gives in a graphic manner his sympathetic observations of the Russian people.

HOWARD, WILLIAM LEE—"Breathe and Be Well." An interesting statement of some easily forgotten truths of personal hygiene.

HOWE, F. C.—"Why War?"—The noted municipal expert here enters a new field and elaborates the thesis that the present war is not a people's war, but a conflict of financial interests.

McCABE—"Crises in the History of the Papacy." An effort to show the main lines of development of the power of the papacy during 15 centuries past. Interesting and well-balanced.

MONTGOMERY — "Productive Farm Crops." Intended for beginners in the study of agriculture—a practical book.

PARIS, BURT J.—"Hardware Advertising for the Retailer." A practical manual, especially valuable for its many illustrations.

RINDSFOOS—"Purchasing." One of the very few books on a subject of much importance to large business institutions.

SCHAFF, D. S.—"John Huss." Eminently readable, just and broadminded.

SCHIRP, F. M.—"A Short History of Germany." A convenient volume for those who want to read as they run. Does not enter into the present-day controversies.

SYKES, Lieutenant-Colonel P. M.—"A History of Persia." By an English army officer who has lived 20 years in Persia. In two volumes.

THOMPSON, VANCE—"Drink and Be Sober." Pretty strong doctrine, but put in a readable way.

WOOD, LEONARD—"The Military Obligation of Citizenship." A clear and forceful statement of certain timely facts, rendered the more impressive by the wide experience of the writer.

GRAFT AND GENTILITY.

THE story of a family of genteel grafters, who believe that the community owed them a living because one of its members was a benefactor of the town, is told by Juliet Wilbor Tompkins in "The Seed of The Righteous." Mrs. Tompkins' books are all worth reading and this one is especially interesting. It is an excellent study of a family that is typical in this country. An attractive love story runs through the book. (Bobbs-Merrill.)

AN ARTIST'S CAREER.

JOHN MURRAY GIBBONS' "Hearts and Faces" is a story so well told that one has a pleasant time in reading to the end to learn what happened. When it is found that nothing much happened, the reader's pleasure need not suddenly evaporate, for it has been bright, easy reading all the way.

The story is that of the life of an artist, which was so ordered that "if love should come, it must be as an interlude, rather a harmony, not changing the impetus of the work." Women come into the story, but other men marry them. One of them, after her marriage, returns to tempt and embarrass him, and interrupts his London career. Later, in Paris, she pays him as best she can—an episode which is convincing, rather than attractive. A cad's career also runs through the book, and his end makes a bit of melodrama that hardly accords with the atmosphere of every-day artist and student life which pervades the rest of the story. (Lane.)

"THE LANCE OF KANANA."

AN Arabian legend, with all the license permissible in romance for the making of a popular hero, finds fullness in "The Lance of Kanana," by Harry W. French. It is out as a new edition of a favorite book, and one can easily understand the popularity that is claimed for it. It unfolds in rather simple style about a central character, with just enough outer support to round out his development and give proper balance.

Kanana is a Bedouin youth who, though excelling in athletic prowess, is branded by his entire tribe, even his father, as a coward because he prefers the lot of a shepherd to the warrior's career that he, the son of a sheik known as the "Terror of the Desert," was expected to follow. "Only for Allah and Arabia will I lift a lance and take a life," is his stubbornly maintained attitude. When opportunity to prove his worth arises he is equal to it, braving peril, hardship and desert thirst to get word of an impending invasion by a powerful enemy, and then to take a commanding part in the destruction of the invaders. Even in the climax of his service there is for a brief period evidence of his treachery to his own people, but this is dispelled by the victorious commander, whom he has directed in the attack and he becomes a national hero, but only after he has died to carry through his plan of service. (Lothrop, Lee & Shepherd Co.)

A GOOD SPRING TONIC.

JESSE Lynch Williams of "Stolen Story" fame has just published a thin volume called "Remating Time" that should be recommended by physicians to all spring-tired business men. It is a story of two mismated couples who decided to change husbands and wives and live happily afterwards. The narrative is written in a snappy, pleasant style and the interest is carried along on a steady stream of quiet laughs regardless of the fact that it is impossible to tell whether Williams is trying to write a satire on divorce or a defense of it. It matters not. The story is the thing. (Scribner's.)

FIRST REGIMENT COMPANY H TO GO INTO CAMP TONIGHT

National Guardsmen Will Pitch Tents in Fairground Park, Between Courts and Ball Ground.

Company H, First Regiment, National Guard of Missouri, will spend tonight and tomorrow in camp at Fairground Park, following a hike to the park in heavy marching order this afternoon. Shelter tents will be occupied by the men tonight. The site of the camp will be between the tennis courts and the baseball grounds.

At 2:30 tomorrow afternoon, a battle exercise will be carried on, in the space east of the swimming pool. One thousand blank rounds of ammunition have been issued to the company. Monday will be the last day for receiving recruits who will be entitled to go to the encampment at Nevada, Mo., where the men will have all expenses paid, and will receive pay. Recruiting will be carried on by members of Company H at the park. The officers of the company are Capt. E. J. McMahon and Lieuts. James J. McMahon and Alexander C. McDonald.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Report All Dog Bites.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I wish to ask if your paper will not bring to the attention of the public, as forcibly as possible, the question of the necessity of all dog bites being at once reported to the Police Department, giving the name and address of the person bitten, and the name and address of the owner of the dog if known. A case has recently occurred strongly illustrating the necessity of this action.

Last Sunday morning the veterinarian of this department was consulted at his private office about a dog, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Oberwinder of 2126 Division street. This dog, that had been for some five or six years a family pet, began to act queerly, snapping at several members of the family, and acting in such a vicious manner as to cause them to isolate it in a vacant room. Before such isolation the dog had succeeded in biting Irene Heilstein, 5 years old, a granddaughter of Mrs. Oberwinder.

The veterinarian was consulted, not because they considered that there was anything serious in the biting of the child, but for the reason that they wished to know what should be done for the dog.

The veterinarian advised that the dog undoubtedly was suffering with a furious form of rabies and instructed the young man to keep the animal isolated until the next morning when he would call by and see the dog. When he called the next morning the dog was dead, and he transported the body to the City Bacteriologist, who, after examining the brain, confirmed the diagnosis of rabies.

This department then placed the child under the Pasteur treatment at the city dispensary, and a fatal termination in the child's case will, no doubt, be averted.

The point is, that these people, not being very intelligent, would not have made any mention of the case and nothing would have been known until the child developed hydrophobia and was past assistance, if it had not been for the call of the young man on our veterinarian.

Assistant Commissioner Health Department.

Sprinkling Neglected.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Like the man who sent postals hourly, last Sunday about no sprinkling. I too can say I am a large taxpayer between Ewing avenue and Jefferson avenue, on Scott avenue, and not only have we had no sprinkling this season, but the street is in such a condition that no wagon can cross it in safety. I have written Mr. Talbert, the Street Commissioner, without avail, so please publish this and see if advertising our complaints will help us to have it remedied. J. G. S.

A Reply to Dr. Elmer Clark.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There are three things that the workingmen of St. Louis want the ministers to do—to preach the gospel, to get out of politics and to stay out.

Men differ widely in their religious opinions, but intelligent and fair-minded persons are generally willing that everyone shall believe and practice whatever religion he chooses, so long as he does not interfere with the peace and welfare of society and is willing to concede to others the same rights that he claims for himself. Ministers and religious teachers who perform their duties in this spirit and labor unselfishly for the welfare of humanity are usually respected and liked by fair-minded persons of all creeds. We have many such ministers in St. Louis. To name a few at random—Father Dempsey, Bishop Tuttle and Rabbi Harrison.

But, unfortunately, we have also another class of ministers who, in the words of their Master, knew not what spirit they are of. Forsaking their legitimate work, as teachers and examples of high ideals and human brotherhood, they seek to have their private opinions on certain points of morality, points upon which there is a wide difference of opinion, enacted into law and to enforce these laws in a domineering and tyrannical manner upon those who differ, men who are in many cases quite as moral, to say the least, as themselves.

As a member and lay officer of a church and as a labor union official, the writer has had an opportunity to study both sides of the problem. And I can assure any one who does not know it that such crusades do the church and the cause of real righteousness no good and much harm. We wonder why the church cannot reach the masses. WORKINGMAN.

Justice Hughes' Popularity.

From the Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

An Eastern contemporary avers that Hughes' popularity is not due to himself so much as to the things he stands for. His early popularity was due to the things he refused to stand for.

NEW HOME RULE ARGUMENT.

Certain city employes have been asked to resign because they favor the nomination of Mr. Lamm as the Republican nominee for Governor rather than that of Mr. Swanger, the choice of the municipal administration. Threats that others will be discharged are made.

The charter specifically forbids the appointment, discharge or demotion of any person in the classified service because of his political or religious opinions or affiliations.

If reprisals are taken on a classified service appointee because of his personal view that Lamm's qualifications are superior to Swanger's, we shall see how far this provision will avail as a protection of St. Louis interests. Presumably care will be taken to pick only persons outside the classified service for punishment.

But how can retaliation even to this extent find apologists? Every time an efficient municipal employe is discharged for so ridiculous a reason, the force of the sentiment for home rule will, we may be sure, be made more urgent.

Too many of St. Louis' offices are appendanges of the Jefferson City political system and will so remain as long as the Governor has control of the police and excise departments. The new policy of retribution would impose somebody's mere preference for the nomination of some particular man in some particular party as a standard of efficiency in departments which are now independent, in which we already have home rule.

It is bad enough to make tenure in minor offices dependent, not on value of service to the city, but on the whim of the machine, the preference of this ward boss, the success of this or that candidate for Alderman or of this party or that individual in capturing the Mayor's office. To make it dependent on every exigency of politics in the entire State of Missouri is monstrous.

Mayor Kiel and his advisers should abandon their attempt to control personal views by such means.

THE OUTLAW BILLPOSTER.

The bill penalizing bill-posting outlaws who disfigure property with paste and paper is not having a smooth pathway in the Board of Aldermen. Perhaps the reason is that few Aldermen have shared the saddening experience of the property owner or householder who wakes in the morning to find his clean brick walls or attractive fences plastered with three-sheets showing some of the bizarre possibilities in extreme typographical and pictorial effects.

The injured person is not now without remedies at law, but those remedies are sought under handicap. A city ordinance with teeth will afford the better safeguards of police protection and pursuit of culprits during the stress of political campaigns and labor disputes. The city beautiful is approximated with difficulty without effective precautions against this form of lawless depredation.

THRIFT IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Vague impressions as to the value of things ordinarily permitted to go to waste are made more definite by an experiment in the public schools. A suggestion that the children collect and bring to school old newspapers is being complied with so enthusiastically that the revenue from the sales has reached $200 a week—an almost incredible sum.

In rendering this much assistance in guarding against a paper shortage, substantial amounts are obtained for the teachers' pension fund, to which the receipts from the sales are applied. Without emphasizing too much the effect on the children's minds, we may believe the experiment also has at least some beneficial results pointing out the rewards of thrift.

And some practical way of teaching thrift in the public schools for the correction of one of America's besetting sins has long been advocated by thoughtful educators.

FATHER WAS RIGHT.

Charles Smith Jr. came home the other evening and found Charles Smith Sr. wearing his (Charles Smith Jr's) silk shirt. Whereupon eventualities eventuated as follows, to-wit, as described by our police reporter:

Smith Jr. hit Smith Sr. on the leg with a club and Smith Sr. hit Smith Jr. on the head with an earthen jar. Then son was taken to the city hospital with a scalp wound and the father was arrested.

Contrary to accepted ethics based upon the sanctity of property, but standing upon sentiment, we take the position that father was right. If filial obligation and affection do not extend to permit paternal liberties with the family haberdashery, precisely as Papa's pants fit Willie by the converse of the rule, then what's the use of families at all, or the pretense of them? As a practical matter, if a young man doesn't want the old man wearing his shirt, he'd better not leave it lying around loose.

THOUGHTS FOR MOTHER'S DAY.

Tomorrow, May 14, is Mother's Day. And this week, in New York City, is Baby Week. Mother and baby are, of course, inseparable. Thoughts about both are, or ought to be happy thoughts, useful thoughts. Baby Weeks and Mothers' Days ought to make us more human, more mutually helpful, more united.

It was on May 9, 1914, that President Wilson first issued a national proclamation setting aside a certain day each year as Mother's Day. The idea was welcomed all over the country. Mother's Day is now a fixed institution. And since its inception much has been accomplished for the welfare of mothers and babies. In nearly every state the day is now observed. In Texas the Governor has made it a custom to pardon some mothers' sons from prison. Churches and Sunday schools hold special services appropriate to the day. And everyone can observe the day by wearing a flower. Any flower will do. All flowers remind one of the delicate, beautiful qualities of motherhood and childhood. But bright flowers are suggested for living mothers; white for those who have passed away.

One of the great things to look after on Mother's Day and during Baby Week is the better care of mothers and the reduction of infant suffering and death rate. There is still much to be done along these lines. New York is just now boasting, and with good cause, that the city's various hygienic movements have resulted in reducing the infant death rate to 94.8 per thousand, as against 103.3 and 103.7 for the two next best great American cities—St. Louis and Boston. But, it is being pointed out in the 175 lecture centers of New York, that in New Zealand, mothers and babies have been so well cared for that now that country has the record of only five deaths out of every 100 babies born, during the first year, while in New York the figure still stands at nine.

Here is something for St. Louis to ponder. We can do as well as New York, as well or better than even New Zealand. Pure milk, knowledge, care and good will can bring the results. And Mother's Day should, this year, be a new start in all this. Save the mothers! Save the babies!

And woman still advances. A Wisconsin young woman has thrown a baseball 227 feet 3 inches.

PUBLIC PATIENCE AND THE MILL TAX.

Chief Justice Woodson in a separate but concurring opinion in the mill tax case wrote that he "concurred in the majority opinion." The United Railways thinks he ought to have written that he concurred "in affirming the judgment for the reason expressed in the separate concurring opinion." In consequence the street car company is trying to have the tax cases tried all over again.

What could be pettier and more frivolous? This case will go into the text books as the classic instance of flagrant abuse of the privilege of the courts through pressing contentious, meritless issues.

If after 13 years this is not recognized as an attempt to escape lawful obligations through judicial delays, will Missouri ever have a case so recognized? The disposition of it should be a matter of hours only, not of days or weeks.

When thousands of American women march for military preparedness, is it no stimulant to the patriotism of the Congress?

MISSOURI ON PREPAREDNESS.

As everyone knows, there is great enthusiasm in the Eastern states in behalf of adequate preparedness. But the impression prevails that the Middle West does not share in that enthusiasm. We are supposed to be apathetic, unstirred by the manifest dangers that face the country.

In order that readers of the Post-Dispatch may learn what is the prevailing sentiment in Missouri, which is the typical Middle Western State, the Post-Dispatch will publish Sunday a symposium of opinions from editors of papers all over the State. They will answer the question whether they believe that the House of Representatives ought to have voted for or against the Senate amendment to the army bill, providing for a standing army of 250,000 men and a volunteer army of 261,000, pledged to 30 days' intensive training yearly.

With a standing army not even large enough adequately to police the Mexican border, what the Middle West decides as to the country's defense is of vital interest. Missouri will be the first to speak.

A German inventor has contrived a centrifugal machine for turning milk into powder. Invention of a similar order has turned the milk of human kindness into gunpowder.

WHAT IS HAPPENING TO THE MOVIES?

By Charlotte Rumbold.

Five years ago, when the first investigation of motion picture shows in St. Louis was made, there were 225 licensed shows; 150 were nickelodeons, 41 airdomes and 34 tent shows.

This spring there are 78 licensed motion picture shows. There are some 5-cent houses, but the admission fees range mostly from 10 to 25 cents and the tent shows have been legislated away. The last of them must disappear in September.

Five years ago the movies loomed upon the alarmed conscientiousness of the National Board of Censorship of Motion Pictures, and of every other board and committee, state, municipal, police, church, civic, throughout the country as a real educational power, partly for evil, completely out of control of the legitimately appointed educational authorities. It was necessary to force upon the motion picture producers and exhibitors a very practical code of ethics—a simple, unsubtle Police Department version of the Ten Commandments: Thou shalt not kill, nor do anything else you would be arrested for. But respectability has a cash value. No one knows this better than the man who sells popular recreation, and this sort of censorship is less and less necessary.

This spring the National Board of Censorship of Motion Pictures has changed its name to the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. One of its important efforts is, with the co-operation of the mothers' clubs, encouragement of the production and circulation of special films and programs, educational and entertaining, to be given on selected days or hours, to audiences of children.

"The Battle Cry of Peace," addressed to "the mothers of America;" "The Life of Henry Ford," "The Career of Gov. Sulzer of New York," "Twilight Sleep," "Safety First," "Fire Prevention," "Your Girl and Mine," are all admittedly propagandist. Each film represents some person's or group of persons' idea of what the public ought to want. They are educational in purpose and, whether we approve the particular propaganda or not, in effect.

Probably the sordid basic cause for all these changes in the movies is the fact that they made a great deal of money, and so a great deal more money has been invested in them. The little shows, set up in a vacant lot, the little producers whose bad taste crossed the line into bad morals, have been shouldered out of business.

The movies have been made respectable, standardized, institutionalized, syndicated. They'll be an art yet. Like the skyscraper, we shall see in them an expression of American life and genius.

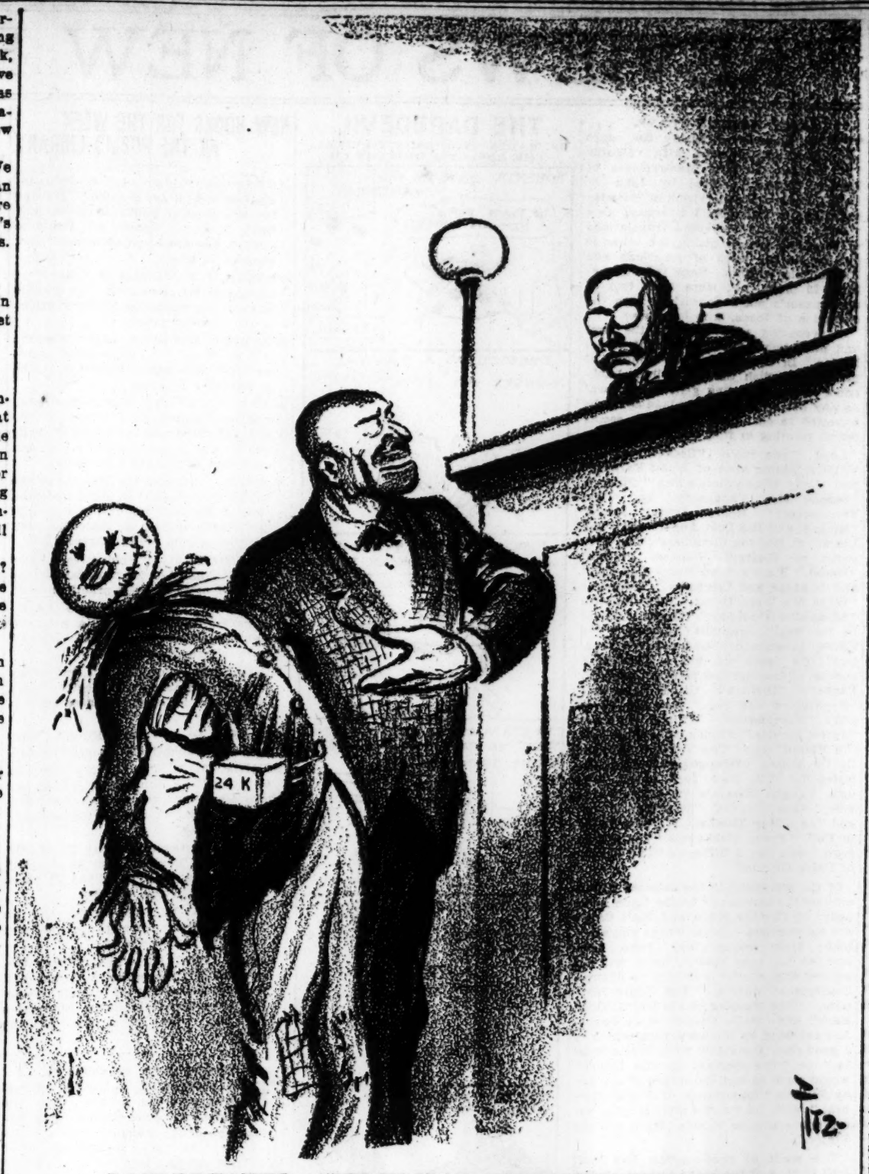

BATTLESHIPS, NOT SEEDS.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Another indication of how the country feels on the subject of preparedness is seen in the reply of an Ohio farmer to his Representative in Congress asking whether or not he wanted any of the Government's free vegetable flower seeds.

The farmer addressed a postal card on which was writttn in large, bold letters:

"Cut out this graft—we want battleships, not seeds."

LAW BREAKER: "MY FRIEND WILL SIGN MY BOND!"

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH by Clark McAdams

BEN JONSON ON SHAKSPEARE.

(There is enough in this poem, written by Shakspeare's fellow craftsman and friend, Ben Jonson, intimately associated with the world's great poet in his career of playright and theatrical manager, and as intimately knowing him as a man, to destroy the theories regarding some other authorship of the plays of Shakspeare. It is well to re-read this wonderful tribute at this time.)

To draw no envy, Shakspeare, on thy name
Am I thus ample to thy book and fame,
While I confess thy writings to be such
As neither man nor muse can praise too much.
'Tis true, and all men's suffrage. But these ways
Were not the paths I meant unto thy praise;
For silliest ignorance on these may light,
Which, when it sounds at best, but echoes night;
Or blind affection, which doth ne'er advance
The truth, but gropes, and urgeth all by chance;
Of crafty malice might pretend this praise
And think to ruin, where it seemed to raise.
But thou art proof against them, and indeed
Above the ill-fortune of them, or the need.

I therefore will begin: Soul of the age!
The applause, delight, the wonder of our stage!
My Shakspeare, rise! I will not lodge thee by Chaucer or Spenser or bid Beaumont lie
A little further off, to make thee room:
Thou art a monument without a tomb,
Thou art alive still, while thy book doth live,
And we have wits to read and praise to give.
That I not mix thee so, my brain excuses,
I mean with great but disproportioned muses:
For if I thought my judgment were of years
I should commit thee surely with thy peers
And tell how far thou did'st our Lily outshine
Or sporting Kyd, or Marlowe's mighty line.
And though thou had'st small Latin and less Greek,
From thence to honor thee I would not seek
For names; but call forth thund'ring Aeschylus
Euripides and Sophocles to us,
Paccuvius, Accius, him of Cordova, dead,
To life again, to hear thy buskin tread,
And shake a stage; or when thy socks were on,
Leave thee alone for the comparison
Of all that insolent Greece or haughty Rome
Sent forth, or since did from their ashes come.

Triumph, my Britain! thou hast one to show
To whom all scenes of Europe homage owe.
He was not of an age, but for all time!
And all the Muses still were in their prime,
When, like Apollo, he came forth to warm
Our ears, or like a Mercury to charm!
Nature herself was proud of her designs,
And joyed to wear the dressing of his lines!
Which were so richly spun and woven so fit,
As since, she will vouchsafe no other wit.
The merry Greek, tart Aristophanes,
Neat Terence, witty Plautus, now not please,
But antiquated and deserted lie
As they were not of Nature's family.

Yet must I not give Nature all; thy art,
My gentle Shakspeare, must enjoy a part
For though the poet's matter Nature be
His art does give the fashion; and that he
Who cares to write a living line, must sweat
Such as thine are, and strike the second heat
Upon the Muses' anvil; turn the same,
And himself with it, that he thinks to frame;
Or for the laurel he may gain a scorn,
For a good poet's made, as well as born,—
And such wert thou! Look how the father's face
Lives in his issue! even so the race
Of Shakspeare's mind and manners brightly shines
In his well turned and true filed lines.
In each of which he seems to shake a lance
As brandished at the eyes of Ignorance.

Sweet Swan of Avon! What a sight it were
To see thee in our waters yet appear
And make those flights upon the banks of Thames
That so did take Eliza and our James!
But stay, I see thee in the hemisphere
Advanced, and made a constellation there!
Shine forth, thou Star of Poets! and with rage
Or influence, chide or cheer the drooping stage
Which since thy flight from hence hath mourned like night
And despairs day, but for thy volume's light!

Something must also be done for construction along the Mexican border. We read that one victim of Mexican raiders was found in a canal riddled with bullets. If we know Mr. Wilson as well as we think we do, that is exactly the sort of thing which is finally to arouse him to violence.

The Board of Aldermen must be trying to stir the animals in the Zoo up. It has appropriated $15,000 for busses to the Art Museum.

Patron (in book store): You misunderstood me. I did not want the best seller. I said best smeller.

HELPFUL BUSINESS HINTS.

DON'T WATCH THE CLOCK—
WATCH THE BOSS,
And go when he does.

Getting a Camel thru the eye of a needle is child's play compared to keeping a salesman out of picture shows on rainy days.

Don't flirt with the stenographer. She may be a better friend of the Boss than you are.

* * *

Don't ever criticise the stenographer. She may be the Boss' wife some day.

THE BOSS IS ALWAYS RIGHT.

And as some abler business man has said before my time, "If the Boss wants something done, it simplifies matters very much to do it."

TWO VIEWS.

I SAT upon a bench today
In beauteaus Forest Park;
The blue of sky, the green of sward,
Ne'er reached a higher mark.
The little children played about
A bird sang in a tree;
I was enraptured, all my world
A perfect symphony.
I moved along and sat me down
Upon a roadside seat,
To watch the gaily 'coutred throng
Where maid and matron meet.
I'm sorry that I had that view,
For this last vision rankles—
Skirts were too short and all my world
Was full of crooked ankles.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone.

LAW POINTS.

INQUIRER.—Minor must pay for necessities. Musical instrument is not a necessity.

IRONCLAD.—The contract must govern. Not knowing its conditions, we cannot advise you.

M. F. T.—Talk with the City Attorney, Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market, about the nonproviding husband who is disturbing your peace.

PAGE.—There is no law under which you could be convicted of a misdemeanor or felony for drinking beer at a friend's home, but you are liable to be caught in a police raid if, as you say, your host is selling liquor without a saloon license.

S. T.—You should have ordered an inspection and not paid for hose license not having any faucet to which such could be connected. See information department of Water Rates office and rebate may be made to you.

P. S.—A chalk sign on the sidewalk may or may not be a nuisance. It depends upon the character of the sign and the temperament of the person whose property is involved. If you have any specific case in view see the City Counselor.

J. McC.—If the terms of the permission to leave the State while under parole included a periodical written report the person so paroled should report, even though the condition was not reduced to writing. It is a moral obligation and may also be construed as a technical violation of the parole.

A. H. M.—The highest courts have held that the telegraph companies are not liable for mistakes or delays in the transmission or delivery of any unrepeated message beyond the amount received for sending same. On a repeated message, for which there is an additional charge of one-half the regular rate, the liability is limited to 50 times the sum received for sending the message.

MASONS OF HIGH DEGREE.

C. B. J.—Secretary General John H. Cowles writes: Replying to your letter of May 6, will say that it is impossible for me to answer your questions perfectly. I will give you the following information, however: There are about 27 Supreme Councils in the world who are in fraternal relationship with each other. Most of these Supreme Councils limit their active membership to 33. One, I believe, the Northern Supreme Council, limits its active membership to 66, but at present there are about 45 members. Our Supreme Council, the Southern, limits its active membership to 33, of which there are now 22 active members, since the death of Brother A. C. Stewart of your city a couple of weeks ago. The Supreme Councils of England and Wales, of Ireland and of Scotland adhere to the constitutions of 1786 and limit their active membership to 9 each. Whether there is a full active membership of the other Supreme Councils I cannot say, for, as a rule, they don't become active members very early in life and the death rate is rather high. There are in the Northern Jurisdiction something like 1100 or 1200 honorary Thirty-third Degree members, and in the Southern Jurisdiction 900 or 1000 honorary Thirty-thirds. The honorary members have the privilege of attending general sessions of the Supreme Council, proposing measures, speaking to motions, etc., but have no vote. There are about 95,000 Scottish Rite Masons belonging to the Northern Jurisdiction and about 85,000 belonging to the Southern Jurisdiction, nearly all of whom are Thirty-second Degree Masons. The constitutions of 1786, which are the constitutions which were revised by Emperor Frederick the Great from the original constitutions of 1762, provide that no country shall have more than one Supreme Council, except the United States of America. The Northern Supreme Council has jurisdiction over the 15 states north of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi. The Southern Jurisdiction covers the other states and territories of the United States, Porto Rico, Hawaiian Islands, Philippine Islands, China and Japan, and both the Northern and Southern Supreme Councils have concurrent jurisdiction over the army and navy of the United States.

SAID ABOUT LAWNS.

GRASS.—Guinea pigs are placed in some lawns. They attack all the worst weeds—the plantains first, then the dandelions and daisies. These broad leaved plants, which no mowing machine will touch, are killed by the persistent cutting of the guinea pig's teeth. When they have finished the weeds, which are broad-leaved and succulent, they proceed to the grass. In a short time the lawn looks as if it had been cut by the closest machine. The persistent cutting of the leaves kills the weeds, which can stand almost any other treatment, but does no harm to the grass. Good, unleached wood ashes and finely ground bone mixed in equal quantities, and used at the rate of seven ounces to a square yard or one ton per acre, will be the best permanent fertiliser that can be given. To hasten growth in the spring, sprinkle the lawn with water in which nitrate of soda has been dissolved. Use one ounce to a gallon of water, and sprinkle this over one square yard; repeat this, using the same quantity. Rolling is one of the most important items in lawn management. To neglect it means, in most cases, a poor lawn. Early spring rolling packs the soil closely about the roots. Air-slaked lime is used on sour soils. The limestone of Kentucky makes the bluegrass of that State. Fall seeding is preferable to spring seeding. An old gardener says that the lawn should be mowed once a week from the time the grass is two or three inches high and that the clippings should be allowed to remain where they fall. If mowing happens to be delayed two or three weeks, however, the clippings should be raked off, for then they will be long enough to smother the grass and make it look yellow. Unless the lawn mower is kept sharp the blades will pull so hard as to start the roots, which will naturally damage the lawn.

Elizabeth in the Tower of London's Chamber of Torture

(In this modern day, the Tower of London appears again in the news as it has been through the history of the Plantagenets, the Lancasters and the Tudors—a palace, a fortress, a prison and a grave. As in the days of forgotten centuries, men charged with espionage and treason pass its dark portals again to enter mysterious imprisonment and sometimes to meet a nameless death. Today's story, from William Harrison Ainsworth's "Tower of London," describes how Princess Elizabeth, afterward to be the great Virgin Queen of England, entered the Tower as a prisoner in danger of her life—not by any means the first or the last of a long and illustrious line.)

SWIFT and furious as summer gale, insurrection flamed against Queen Mary. Before her adherents gathered their wits Sir Thomas Wyat had Rochester town and castle and swept on London, which arose to join him. Hardly was there time to break down the drawbridges of London Bridge when Wyat, Lord Dudley, the Earl of Suffolk and a dozen great nobles more were assaulting the Tower of London itself.

All night long Mary, true daughter of strong-hearted Henry the Eighth, stood on the ramparts in the red light of burning buildings while the rebels struck at all the gates and towers and carried them one by one. She alone of all the defenders would not give up hope. And all at once, when all seemed lost, the battle turned. Dudley, cut off in an assault, was first to be dragged into the Tower a prisoner; Bret, leader of London's train-bands, was captured and his head was on the walls before morning. Wyat, hard pressed, fled through London and was taken and brought back. The assault had crumbled swiftly as a storm dies away.

While the fires still burned and wounded men still lay untended, Mary ordered faithful Sir Henry Bedingfeld to ride to Ashbridge and bring her sister Elizabeth to the Tower dead or alive, on charge of complicity with the rebels.

It was a morning of beating rain and storm when they brought her by river to the stern old pile that was palace, fortress, prison and grave in one. "You are not making for the Traitor's Gate?" cried Elizabeth suddenly, breaking her haughty silence for the first time.

"It is the Queen's command," answered Sir Henry sadly. A mighty wooden water-gate swung on immense hinges. The boat shot under a gloomy arch and entered a pit of black waters surrounded by steep, slimy walls. Armed men stood on dank steps, and Elizabeth, daughter of Henry VIII, passed into prison.

She learned that Wyat had confessed under torture that she had been a conspirator with him. Undaunted, she demanded that he be confronted with her in Mary's presence.

Wyat, Half Dead, Is Brought Before Mary and Elizabeth.

COLDLY Mary granted the request. At midnight Sir Thomas Brydges, Lieutenant of the Tower, came with two officials in coal-black robes and a guard of halberdiers with torches. Elizabeth was led through narrow stone passages, down and down, till suddenly she entered a vaulted, subterranean chamber redly lit.

The Princess saw walls hung with a dreadful array of hideous instruments, many of which showed signs of recent use. On a couch, supported by two executioners, was a wretched human being. His lower limbs were hidden by a cloak hastily thrown over them, but his ghastly, writhing features suggested what horror the cloak concealed. Elizabeth hardly could believe that this miserable man, whom it would have been a merciful thing to kill, could be the once strong and wholly fearless Sir Thomas Wyat.

Near him stood Queen Mary, unmoved.

Elizabeth fell to her knees and thanked her for granting the interview. "I can now prove my innocence," she cried.

"In what way?" asked Mary, coldly. "We have yon traitor's confession, taken from his own lips and signed with his own hand."

Wyat fixed his heavy eyes on Elizabeth. His gaze was dull. He was in a flame of torment.

"The confession has been wrung from him!" answered Elizabeth. "Look at his shattered frame! Let the sworn executioners declare how often they have stretched him on the rack, how often applied the thumbscrew, how often delivered him to deadly embrace of the scavenger's daughter before this false charge was wrung from him!"

A stifled groan broke from Wyat and a sharp convulsion shook him. "Sir Thomas Wyat!" said Elizabeth sharply, stepping close to him. "If you would not render your name infamous, declare my innocence!"

The sufferer gazed at her like a dumb animal. Mary watched the two.

"You well know your confession is false!" commanded Elizabeth. "Speak! The worst is over. They will not torture you again, because it would be fatal and thus you would escape the scaffold. Retract your words!"

Wyat Confesses He Falsely Accused Princess Elizabeth.

WYAT lifted his head with a desperate effort. "I falsely accused you," he groaned. "I will die proclaiming your innocence." He spoke to the executioners and they carried him to her feet, where they helped him kneel.

"Then thy former declaration was false, thou perjured traitor!" cried Mary.

"What I say now is the truth!" replied Wyat. Piteously, he motioned to the attendants to raise him, the pain of kneeling being too acute for endurance. "Take the Princess Elizabeth to the Bell Tower!" said Mary, and turned to go without another look at the broken man. Elizabeth left him with more compassion; but she, too, hastened to get away from the fearful place whose very air oppressed her soul.

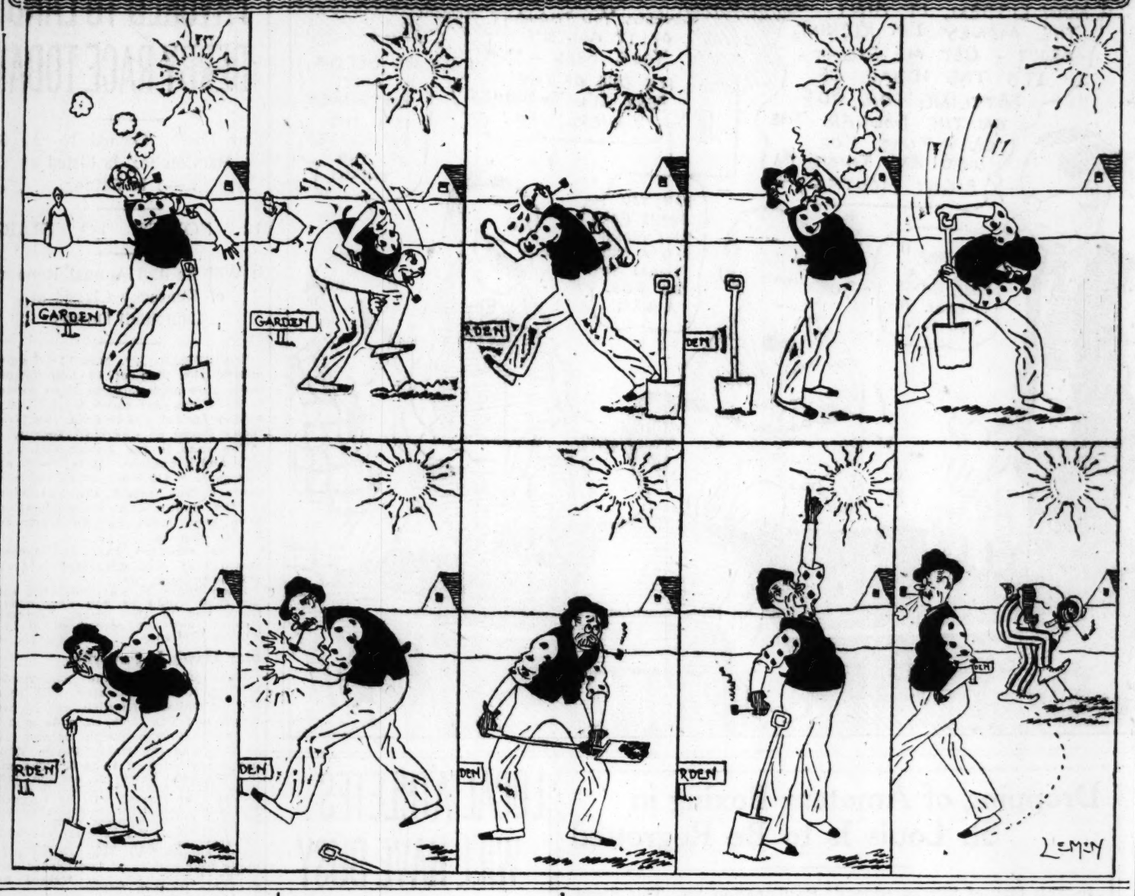

In after years, when the crown was on her head, she often recalled her imprisonment and her agony of terror; but never once did the memory make her heart relent when illustrious captives were doomed to the same dungeons, or men who had been near to her passed through the doleful Traitor's Gate not to emerge again except for their last brief journey to the scaffold on Tower Hill.

William Harrison Ainsworth (1805-1882) wrote "The Lover of London," with the declared purpose of making this English monument of antiquity the groundwork of a romance. He succeeded so well that it may be said that there is no part of the famous place from its drawbridges to its least and greatest towers, chapels, chambers and gateways that does not figure in some one of the trooping events that glitter in its chapters. The book from the viewpoint of historical interest and entertainment, is of the first rank.

When a Man's Married

A Story of Wedded Life.

By Dale Drummond.

Chapter XXXIII.

JANE found a position with but little trouble. She had been an efficient teacher of the lower grades, and was soon installed in a boarding house, going regularly back and forth as she had done before she met Robert. But now she felt a strange unrest, a discontent for which she could not account. And—she missed Robert.

"I won't ask him to take me back! I won't!" she would say, desperately wanting to go, homesick for the old house of which she had been mistress, missing the independence, the feeling of freedom which space gives, and which she had not realized while enjoying it.

But Jane worked doggedly on. The same spirit which had made her refuse to cook for Robert, now helped her to stick to her job, and she almost persuaded herself at times that she was happy in her new independence; almost—not quite. Then of a sudden there came a day when the world turned black, when she knew that nothing mattered save Robert, and his love. Without him she could never live through the coming month. But what could she do? Her pride would not allow her to send for him, neither would it let her confess herself in the wrong and go to him. She was poignantly unhappy; yet for another month she worked on.

Marion Lawrence Marries.

SHE grew more and more restless, as her health failed. Then one day she knew; and with the knowledge came a thrill of joy so intense it frightened her; and with it came a longing for Robert which would not be denied. For hours she turned the great wonder over in her mind, first full of fear and dread, then quivering with joy. But her joy as well as her fear was tempered by her thoughts of Robert. Oh, if he only knew! and IF he knew would he be GLAD? Or had she by her actions driven him from her forever?

One day as she was glancing listlessly through a newspaper she came upon the marriage announcement of Marion Lawrence. Had she been wrong in this as she had been in all else, and was Robert's liking for Marion only as he claimed, that of an old friend?

All cause for jealousy removed, her longing for Robert grew more intense, and she began to plan her return to Westland. But the fear that he might not want her now, that he might have given up their home and gone away, kept her silent and held her back. But a day came when she could no longer endure her loneliness. She packed her trunk, paid her bill at the boarding house, and took the train for Westland. She would not write, she would see with her own eyes if Robert were still in the old place.

For Better or Worse.

IT was a cold, stormy night when she reached Westland, and as the snow swirled about her and drifted in heaps along the street she thought of that first night when she and Robert had come to the quaint little town together, and of how she had declared she could never be happy there.

It was dark when she reached the house. As she walked up the path leading to the front door she saw a glimmer of light in the living room. She turned the knob. The door swung quietly open and she entered the hall. She had made but little noise, but the door of the living room was suddenly opened and the light streamed out into the hall.

"Jane!" Robert cried, and in another moment she was weeping in his arms, her wonderful secret shared.

"Can you forgive me, Robert?" she asked tremblingly. "I have been a wicked, fault-finding wife! But if you will take me back I'll try and make a home for you, try and make you—and the child—happy."

"It was for better or for wrose, little wife," Robert answered. "We have had the bad; now we will appreciate the good."

And he folded in his arms the wife for whom he had so patiently waited.

Japanese Dentistry.

THE Japanese dentist, like the heathen Chinese, is peculiar. He refuses to use anything except his fingers in pulling teeth. He first acquires strength by pulling out, with the finger and thumb of his right hand, a number of wooden pegs which have been inserted into holes in a plank. Then a tougher log with tougher pegs is tried, and he is kept at this for a year. After that he operates on a slab of marble, which contains pegs of the hardest wood deeply driven in. Then he is qualified to go into business.

A good workman will seize a patient with his left hand and draw out five or six teeth with his right without stopping to rest.

Chinese Way of Hatching Chicks

THE Chinese method of hatching as many as 500 duck and chicken eggs in one sitting has not yet been adopted in this country.

Unhusked rice is used for the purpose, and when this has been roasted, it is either cooled by a fanning process or the wind is allowed to blow through it until it is lukewarm.

The breeder then sprinkles a three-inch layer of rice in the bottom of a wooden tub, and on this surface places about 100 eggs; another layer of rice about two inches thick is spread over them, and on this layer eggs are also placed, and the tub is filled in this way until there are six layers of rice and five of eggs, making 500 eggs in all in the tub.

Every 24 hours the rice has to be heated, and for this purpose the eggs have to be removed, the bottom layer this time being placed on top and the other layers one row lower down, the eggs that occupied the central position in the tub now being placed at the edges.

There is some difficulty in gauging the exact time at which the eggs will hatch, and unless care is taken some of the young ones are likely to be smothered. This is, of course, the point at which the ability of the expert is shown.

The Uses of Rubber.

RUBBER, which was introduced into Europe in 1735, was used first for pencil erasers, next in waterproofing cloth, and finally in solution as a cement, though by now its vulcanized forms, especially that which goes into motor car tires, take precedence over all others in point of quantity consumed.

Women's STOMACH TROUBLES

The Great Woman's Medicine Often Just What Is Needed.

We are so used to thinking of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy exclusively for female ills that we are apt to overlook the fact that it is one of the best remedies for disorders of the stomach.

For stomach trouble of women it is especially adapted, as it works in complete harmony with the female organism, since it contains the extracts of the best tonic roots and herbs. It tones up the digestive system, and increases the appetite and strength. Here is what one woman writes showing what this medicine does:—

Newfield, N. Y.—"I am so pleased to say I can recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as an economical and beneficial remedy in most ailments pertaining to women. At least I found it so by only taking two bottles. I had indigestion in a bad form and I am now feeling in the best of health and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." Mrs. BURR WILLIAMS, R. D. No. 29, Newfield, N Y.

Many women suffer from that "all gone feeling," and "feel so faint," while doing their work. Ten chances to one their digestive system is all out of order. A tablespoonful of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after each meal should completely remedy this condition in a few days.

Why Elephants Fear Mice

Sandman story of a happening in a jungle long before mankind inhabited this earth.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

ONCE upon a time there lived a great herd of elephants in the forests of old. This was in days so far back that no human being then was on earth. This world was only a great swamp and wood full of wild animals.

Now in every herd of elephants there was a head—a chief—who ruled the rest. But one day the chief of this herd died and left two sons, Grumbo and Mina. Mina was the eldest and should have been made in chief in his father's place, but Grumbo was much larger and determined to take that honor from his smaller brother.

"I weigh two tons more than Mina," he shouted aloud until the trees trembled. "Come, all you rest of the herd, and listen to my speech. My older brother is weaker than I. Why not make me the leader? I am strong enough to uproot the largest rock, to wade the widest rivers, and I am the one to lead this herd—not a small fellow like Mina."

"That is not a fair proposition," at last said one old elephant, whose wrinkled, gray hide showed that he was at least 200 years old. "Your older brother has the right and we cannot take it away from him."

THERE was silence for a moment, then out on the air rang the enraged scream of Grumbo as he burst through the ring and crushed his way through the jungle, trumpeting his anger aloud at every step. With blood-shot eyes he kept on his mad way for hours, till at last he fell exhausted.

The moon crept up over the hills, but Grumbo lay still. Out in the jungle he could hear the cry of the panther, the howl of the wolf and the hoot of the owls, but he cared nothing for these.

"I know what I can do," he grunted to himself; "I can take this rope and tie Mina in the forest till he starves. He feeds on the buds of the tulip tree by the big swamp, so if I leave a noose at the foot it will catch his leg and hold him forever, then I will be chief."

So out through the darkness lumbered the wicked Grumbo, dragging a long, thin, but very strong, rope. He found the tulip tree just at dawn, tied one end of the rope to the trunk. In the other end he made a slipknot with which to catch the poor brother. Then he sat down in the shade of a huge bush to wait. Presently he heard Mina coming, but he noticed the slipknot was not placed in the right position.

"I will step across the ground and fix that before Mina gets here," said Grumbo. "He is a poor, weak fellow and moves slowly, so I will have plenty of time."

OUT he went and began to arrange the rope, but before he had finished he heard the crashing of bushes near at hand and saw Mina almost upon him. Hoping to slip away unnoticed, Grumbo jumped around and started in the opposite direction, but he made a mistake and stumbled. As he tripped his hind leg caught in the slipknot and he was himself held fast.

The more Grumbo roared and pulled the smaller and smaller he got. Mina heard the noise and fled, thinking a big fight was going on.

"I hate to grow small," groaned Grumbo, "but it is better than dying of starvation. This is my punishment, and I deserve it."

So he kept on roaring and bellowing and bursting around and growing smaller and smaller and smaller, till at last just as Mina came back and peeped through the leaves the great Grumbo was just the size of a tiny mouse. Mina saw him slip through the knot, and though the weaker brother was still a big elephant, his horror of the wicked Grumbo was so strong that he trembled at the sight. And ever since then an elephant will shiver when he sees a mouse.

How "Blood Tells."

IN accounts of murder cases we often read of chemists making a test of the blood stains on the suspect's clothes to see whether or not the stains are of human blood.

The test for human blood is not as easy as it sounds, and to establish the fact of human blood stains when dried on clothing is next to impossible by any short method such as examination by the microscope.

To determine whether a stain is human blood or not is a long, complicated process. First a rabbit, guinea pig or other small animal is treated for a protracted period with injections of live human blood until it becomes "immunised." The next step is the production of a blood serum from the test animal. This serum will have a chemical affinity for the red cells of true human blood.

The suspected blood, if dried, is put into a salts solution and a small quantity of it then added to the serum from the blood of the animal. If the red corpuscles of the suspected blood are from the human stream there will be an immediate action of the two parts of the serum, no action will ensue.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By Helen Rowland.

MY DAUGHTER, hearken unto the Spring Song of a Damsel of Babylon.

Yea, let Squabs pursue the way of dalliance, and Man-haters rejoice in their independence; let Feminists scoff, and Eugenists lift up their protests; but THIS is the earnest Prayer which every maiden chanteth in her heart, today and forever.

"Oh, Providence, send me a HUSBAND!

"Yea, verily, a sweet old-fashioned Husband, who ariseth at 6 in the morning and prepareth to go forth to his labors; who returneth to his home at 6 in the evening and prepareth to stay there!

"Who runneth the lawn mower in the summer, and runneth the family all the year round.

"Who supplieth me with mine opinions and my politics, and likewise with my hats, and my gowns, and my maid servants, and my men servants, and my pocket money, and everything that is mine.

"Who layeth down the carpets, and likewise the laws of the household; who bringeth up the coal and likewise the children in the way they should go.

"Who putteth up the screens in the spring, and the curtains in the autumn, and the cash at all times.

"Who painteth the front piazza with his own hands, but doth not go forth to 'paint the TOWN' at any time.

"Who looketh upon me as superior to every other woman in the world and INFERIOR to no one—save himself!

"Who hearkeneth not unto my arguments, neither answereth back, but taketh the words from my mouth—with a kiss.

"Who regardeth me neither as a head-rest nor as a foot-rest!

"Who Despiseth a lie; and therefore fibbeth unto me only when it is necessary for mine own happiness.

"Who treateth me as tenderly as I treat my pet Angoras, and ruleth me as firmly as I rule mine own children.

"Who bindeth me to him with rings and ribbons and chains of pearl and roses, rather than with hooks of steel.

"For I know that, in the Kingdom of Matrimony, there can be only ONE throne! And I prefer to sit at the foot thereof and be petted, rather than to hold the sceptre and bear the burdens of state.

"Verily, verily, I was born a RIB; and I do not sigh to become a Backbone. Neither do I yearn to be an 'Equal,' nor a 'Chum,' nor a 'Soul-Mate,' but only a wife!

"Yea, and I do not want a jelly-fish, neither a man of straw, nor a footstool, nor an errand boy, nor a household ornament, nor a soft-cushion, nor a mental-mate, nor an 'inspiration,' nor anything else in all the world, save a HUSBAND!"

Recipes Worth Trying

Raisin Pie—Take juice and grated rind of 1 lemon, 1 cup of raisins, 1 cup of water, 1 cup of rolled crackers, 1 cup of sugar. Stone the raisins and boil in water to soften. Bake with two crusts.

Savory Ham—One cup chopped ham, ½ cup bread crumbs, scant level teaspoon of mustard and pepper. Chop fine 1 hard-boiled egg; moisten all with milk and bake about 30 minutes in baking dish.

Baked Finnan Haddie—Wash a 3-pound finnan-haddie and lay in pan, skin on bottom of pan. Pour over 3 cups of skim milk or 1½ cups of whole milk and 1½ cups of water. Bake 30 minutes, or until it flakes. Remove from milk and spread on 2 tablespoons of melted butter and shake of pepper.

We Said It Would Be a Cold Day When the Phils Made "Sea Lion" Take Water

DODGERS, ANOTHER BASEBALL ENIGMA, MEET CARDS TODAY

Brooklyn Club, Composed Mostly of Cast-Offs, Are Leading National League.

FINAL PHIL GAME LOST

But It Took Ten Innings of Smart Baseball to Beat Hug's Juveniles, 5—4.

By W. J. O'Connor.

After you get through figuring out Who the Indians are and why, just take a week off and investigate the Superbas, those enigmatic pace-makers in the National League.

The Superbas are with us today to purvey some more of their pop-eyed pastime against the Cardinals, opening a four-game series this afternoon. The Superbas are equipped with a large and intelligent board of strategy; Wilbur Robinson being large, while Jack Coombs is intelligent.

They have Harry Harlan Mowrey, who fought with Plank at Gettysburg, on third, and Ivan Olson, who has been decorated with the iron double cross more times than any submarine commander in the Kaiser's navy, at short. Cutshaw at second, and a great tenor, Jack Daubert, on first, round out an infield which is playing more baseball than Brooklyn has seen since the days of Ned Hanlon.

Ancient but Honorable Pitchers.

Casey Stengel, Zachariah Wheat, a reformed Indian, and Mr. Myers are manning the outer defense, while the pitching staff is made up mostly of men who have outlived their usefulness in the big cities of the U. S. A. When a man can't find work in America he usually goes to Brooklyn.

Larry Cheney was told to leave the Cubs' park and lock the gate from the outside, so he went to Brooklyn. Jack Coombs was tabbed a "has been" by Connie Mack and he almost broke down the Williamsport Bridge getting into Ebbets' office. And Mr. Marquard, who is trying to elevate the stage, also went stale, which is how that new New Yorkers make fun of, when McGraw took the final punch in his meal ticket at the Polo Grounds.

Taken by and large, therefore, these Superbas look like an iridescent secret society organized by what Percival Chubb would term an uneducated minority who failed to profit by the great lesson taught in Jim Jeffries' defeat by Johnson at Reno. But the joke of the thing is that these erudite athletes from Brooklyn are winning in spite of their age.

Pfeffer a Real Star.

Of course they have some substantial props in Jeff Pfeffer, who ranks right up with Alexander, Toney, Ames and Rudolph as one of the stars of the league, and Sherrod Smith, a left-hander seldom equalled and rarely excelled. McCarthy is a pretty good catcher and so is O. Miller, not to mention the rotund Chief Myers, who is copying after Robinson.

But in the pre-season predictions the early-morning clockers who thought they knew something about the National League race, picked Boston, New York and Philadelphia to fight it out for the flag. These calculations stand up just as well as the dope which predestined the Cleveland club to give Connie Mack an honest but terribly vicious fight for last place. So, we repeat, if you want to further study the vagaries of the popeyed pastime known as baseball, just park the dinner pail and pay Robison Field a visit this afternoon. The ancient but wise men from the East will cross bats with Hug's juveniles, Sallee opposing Pfeffer.

Well, They Finally Lost!

Yesterday the Cardinals pulled the unexpected on the Phillies and presented the speechless champions with a ball game, but only after 10 innings of spicy baseball, 5—4. Sea Lion Hall was as tame as a mackerel two days out of water, and the Phillies scored three runs off him early in the game.

Meadows started in the fifth, about four innings too late, and blanked the enemy until the tenth, when he lost control and passed Luderus, beaned Killefer and fumbled Rixey's bunt, filling the bases. Bancroft filed to Beecher in short left, but Niehoff singled and two runs came galloping home.

The Cards made a gallant bid for the box score in their portion of the added stanza, hits by Brottem and Miller, following Bezdel's tap to Stock. Corhan forced Miller, but Hornsby doubled in the ninth and again in the tenth, giving the locals another fine mess of extra-base blows.

The prettiest defensive play of the day was turned by Bruno Betzel, who was shifted to right field in the tenth. He ran towards center, jumped and speared Cravath's drive, saving the Cards two runs. This Betzel could go up for Kreisler or oJsef Hofmann and make a great play.

Records Expected to Fall.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., May 13.—Predictions that several records would be broken today in the Southwestern Conference track and field meet here were made by coaches of all college participants. Contestants are teams from the University of Texas, Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, University of Oklahoma, Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College, and the University of Arkansas.

Yale Tackles Harvard.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 13.—The Yale track team was generally considered to have a strong chance of winning the dual track meet with Harvard here today. The weather was favorable for both track and field events.

Pittsburg—Harry Palmer and George Lewis, six-round draw. Billy Haas knocked out Joe Ferns, one round. Rec Walters stopped Happy McAleer, three rounds. Kid Henry knocked out Jim Smith, three rounds.

Boston—Harry Carlson and Howard McRae, 12-round draw.

Kansas City—Jack Torres and Mickey Sheridan, 12-round draw.

Ottawa, O.—Johnny Newton knocked out Jack Dahill, two rounds. Young Dahill beated Bruno Sutter, six rounds.

Philadelphia—Joe Phillips and Kid Thomas, six-round draw.

Lawrence, Mass.—Johnny Donovan beat Buddy Delan, 10 rounds.

Dropping of Amateur Boxing in St. Louis Is to Be Regretted

In This Day of "Preparedness" Participation in This Sport Would Go a Long Way Towards Fitting Youngsters for Later Trials.

By Harry S. Sharpe,
Referee for the Future City Athletic Club and the Post-Dispatch's Boxing Authority.

HE demise of amateur boxing in St. Louis is to be regretted. It is a wholesome, manly sport that deserves encouragement, and in this day when the idea of "preparedness" is uppermost in the minds of the public it may be pointed out that participation in amateur boxing tournaments will go a long way to fit the younger element for the trials which may later on confront them. Trials in which strength, courage, self-control and determination will be essential factors in the protection of our ideals and defense of our Government.

It is unfortunate that clubs in St. Louis organized for the purpose of promoting athletics have eliminated amateur boxing. The recent edict of the Missouri Athletic Association that it would be discontinued at that institution was the last straw. This club's predecessor, the M. A. C., took pride in its boxing team and developed the best set of amateur boxers in this section of the country, and they were able to maintain their own anywhere in the United States.

The South Broadway A. C., Columbian A. C., Stag A. C., Irish-American A. C. and Knights of Columbus all contributed their share and the tournaments given several years ago furnished keen competition and excellent entertainment. Most of the amateurs who won distinction in those days afterwards became professional boxers and made good, due to the training they had received as amateurs.

It would help matters if the athletic clubs of St. Louis would co-operate to give at least one amateur tournament a month during the fall and winter season. There is plenty of material in St. Louis among youngsters who would be glad to compete, but who do not care to enter the professional end of the game.

An amateur boxer is one article whose value is not enhanced by reason of its scarcity. When there are only a limited number of amateur boxers the tournaments given are few and far between, and the less opportunity to appear. But not matter how many of him there may be, the maximum value of his services is contained in a $35 medal. This is an edict of the Amateur Athletic Union, and all clubs associated with that body must follow its rulings in this particular or suffer penalty.

New Club Is Organized.

Middle-Weight Boxer: Tommy Burke, his brother Sam and Harry Cook, all of them associated with the boxing game in St. Louis, have organized the Forest Park Athletic Club, located at Belleview and Wise avenues. This is in the county, a short distance from the southwest corner of Forest Park, with the Market street car passing the main entrance.

The club is located on a 10-acre site, has outdoor handball and tennis courts and a gymnasium building, having hot and cold shower baths.

Sam Burke stated that the club is promoted especially for the benefit of business men who desire an outdoor place for exercising, and that it does not propose to compete with the boxing clubs of St. Louis. However, it is probable that some bouts of minor importance will be given occasionally as entertainment for the members, though even this is not contemplated for the present.

A feature of the club will be a department for women, at special hours, under the direction of an experienced woman athletic director as matron.

Morton, Indians' Star, Has Taken Last Five Games

In These Battles Right-Hander Has Held His Opponents to Seven Runs.

Guy Morton, the star right-hander of the Indians, after losing his first game of the season and being benched with the score tied in his next start, has won his last five games for Lee Fohl. Morton started on his winning streak on April 23, at the expense of the Browns and since has downed the White Sox twice, while the Tigers and Red Sox have each suffered once.

Fohl's "ace in the hole" made his initial start of the campaign against the Browns, April 13, and after pitching great ball for seven frames, was clouted for four runs in the eighth. It is the lone reverse suffered by him this year. In winning five straight he has held his opponents to seven tallies. He has allowed 14 all season in 61 innings. His record:

Date.	Opponents.	R.	H.	In'ngs.
April 13—Browns		4	8	8
April 18—Detroit		3	7	7
April 23—Browns		2	7	9
April 28—Chicago		1	5	10
May 2—Detroit		1	4	9
May 6—Chicago		1	9	9
May 10—Boston		2	6	9
Totals		14	44	61

Dave Robertson connected for another bingle, his eleventh straight contest in which he has hit safely. His contribution against Mamaux was a circuit smash. The Giants again won, 8—2, in 10 frames. The winning streak for McGraw's outfit now totals four. Some record, men! A clean sweep in the series with the Pirates.

Benjamin Kauff increased his lead over Ty Cobb and George Sisler yesterday. Benny is stepping out with .315 against .274 for Cobb and .266 for Sisler. The marks:

	AB.	R.	H.	SH.	SB.	Av.
Kauff	73	7	23	2	7	.315
Cobb	82	12	23	1	6	.274
Sisler	94	15	25	5	6	.266

Hank Gowdy of the Braves and Heine Zimmerman of the Cubs had a batfest of their own yesterday. Gowdy rapped out four out of five, while Zim smashed out two home runs off Tyler. The Cubs lost, 9—4.

All wild men records were shattered in the series between the Tigers and Athletics. In the four battles, the hurlers for the two clubs handed out 83 bases on balls and hit two men. The Tigers won yesterday, 8-6, in 11 frames.

George Mogridge, southpaw, held the White Sox to two singles yesterday and won, 2—0.

Illinois "Prep" Meet.

URBANA, Ill., May 13.—Approximately 700 preparatory school athletes from all parts of Illinois are here today to take part in the twenty-fourth annual outdoor interscholastic track and field meet, held under the auspices of the University of Illinois.

LOCAL ATHLETES WILL HAVE BUSY TIME THIS P. M.

Track Meet at Francis Field, Golf and Baseball Make Up the Schedule.

A triangular track and field meet, a bit of "goff" and a host of baseball games have combined to make up the somewhat varied amateur athletic program for this afternoon.

The cinder path squads of Washington University, Southern Illinois Normal College and the McKendree College will compete in the first three-cornered track meet of the local season at Francis Field this afternoon. Besides the local interest that is attached to the competition, there is more than a little rivalry between the two visiting schools. McKendree and the Illinois Normals annually are rivals for the track title of the Southern Illinois College Conference and the events today should be keenly contested. The meet will be started at 2:30 p. m.

Besides the numerous Municipal Association contests, the Cleveland and Yeatman high school nines will open their second round of play in the Interscholastic Baseball League at high school campus. Cleveland won over Yeatman by a narrow margin in the first game between the two schools several weeks ago and in order to keep out of the cellar position will have to repeat its victory. The game will be started at 2:30 o'clock.

Cleveland Plays Yeatman.

Although tournament play will not be held at all of the local golf clubs, it is a certainty that each of the links in and about the city will be well populated this afternoon. The regular greens on all of the courses were opened last Saturday, when many of the clubs held opening day tournaments.

The second round match play of the Algonquin Club spring tourney will be played today. This is a handicap affair and in the qualifying round broke the record for the number of entries.

Out Normandy way the time-worn annual spring tournament will be opened with an assured large number of contestants and unusually fresh greens and solid ways. Kirkwood Country Club, Midland Valley, Triple A, Glen Echo and Country Club golfers will simply pair off for their twosomes, threesomes and foursomes this afternoon and wait a week for so for tournament play.

Jones Would Rather Have Tris Speaker Than Cobb or Johnson

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.

ALTHOUGH the Browns lost three games in Washington, the Nationals at no time looked more important than 30 cents, except for their pitching. Johnson, of course, is a known quantity. Gallia pitched a splendid game against the Browns Thursday, while Harper had it on the Browns in two games, except for his wildness. Ayers as a good hurler, too, when right.

I asked Fielder Jones what he thought of the Senators' pennant chances.

"The team lacks a punch. It will go just as far as its pitchers can carry it. The staff is good, but it needs a heavier attack to win.

"I consider the Western clubs more formidable because they have the punch Washington lacks."

Nationals Lack Punch.

Whether this includes St. Louis or not Jones did not specify. We spared him the pangs of confession for, after the Washington series, the matter of the possession of a punch did not appear at all questionable as regards the Browns. They have left it somewhere, for the time being, if they own one.

In a desire to find out whether Jones thought the Browns had a pitching or a batting weakness, the writer asked the team's manager, last night, whether he would rather have Walter Johnson or Ty Cobb, at the present time.

"Neither. I'll take Tris Speaker," he said. He explained by adding that Speaker had the punch and the defense, too, and that the Browns' pitching would round to, all right, ere long.

There was a report at the ball park yesterday that Vin Campbell, formerly of the Newark Feds, was being solicited to join the Browns. Fielder Jones denied this, last night. "Campbell has a big contract, which we do not care to assume," he said. "Furthermore, he is not interested enough in making the game his profession. We dickered with him earlier in the season."

Jones Denies All Rumors.

Rumors of a shakeup in the Browns' batting order, following the weak hitting in Washington, were also denied by Jones. "There is only one possible change that I could make," he remarked, "and that is to shift Sisler and Miller in the present batting arrangement. I don't see any reason to do this now. The men will hit their true speed according to their known ability later."

It was announced that Bob Groom would work against Philadelphia today, and that Eddie Plank would be saved for Monday.

The club had a week financial stand at Washington. Less than $800 was the Browns' end for the four games. This is only a few dollars more than the club received from its exhibition game at Olean, N. Y., Monday.

The prospect of big crowds at Philadelphia is also slight, with the Mackmen still in last place.

Owner Phil Ball is expected to join the club in New York City, when the team goes there for a series.

Ward Miller is the team's best hitter, but both he and Maranas are swinging too wild to suit the old timers.

ENGLISH ENTRY IS FAVORED TO LAND DERBY RACE TODAY

Star Hawk, Owned by A. K. MacComber, Is Listed at 2—1 in Betting.

12 HORSES TO START

It Will Be 42d Annual Running of Kentucky Classic at Churchhill Downs.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 13.—Twelve horses, the pick of 56 nominations made this spring, have been named to go to the post today in the forty-second annual running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs.

The race is for 3-year-olds at a mile and a quarter. It is worth approximately $15,000. As in the past years a free infield will be opened to the public and accommodations have been made at the track for 100,000 visitors.

It is expected that the largest crowd that ever witnessed a derby will be present.

Early today it was indicated that the race would be run over a fast track and in that event horsemen predict that the record of 2:03 2-5 will be broken.

Star Hawk Is Favorite.

First choice in the pari-mutuel betting, it was indicated, will be A. K. McComber's English entry, Star Hawk and The Cock, at odds of 2 to 1; with George Smith second and 13 to 5 and the Harry Payne Whitney entry third at 18 to 5. The race is regarded, however, as the most open derby ever run and all of the horses that started will be wagered. Huffaker and Kinney probably will be held at the longest odds.

A feature of the race is that while 12 starters have been named, but eight owners are represented, there being four entries of two horses each.

The horses, owners, weight and probable jockeys follow:

(a) Horse, Star Hawk; owner, A. K. Macomber; weight, 117; jockey, M. Garner.
(b) George Smith; J. Sanford; 117; J. Loftus.
(c) Franklin; J. S. Ward; 117; F. Murphy.
(d) Thunderer; H. P. Whitney; 117; J. Notter.
(c) Dodge; J. S. Ward; 117.
(d) Dominant; H. P. Whitney; 117; T. McTaggart.
Bulse; J. W. Parrish; 117; F. Cooper.
Lena Misha Beverwyck Stable; 117; E. Dugan.
(b) St. Isidore; J. Sandford; 114; L. Mink.
Kinney; T. P. Hayes; 117; L. Gentry.
(a) The Cock; A. K. Macomber; 110; W. Lilley.
Huffaker; W. F. Cisco; 117.
(a) Macomber entry. (b) Sanford entry.
(c) Ward entry. (d) Whitney entry.

North End Will Hold Its First Races Tomorrow

This Will Be Second of Local Rowing Clubs to Stage Revival Day Races.

Another of the local rowing clubs will inaugurate its 1916 season, when the North End Club holds it revival day regatta on the river, with two junior events. One of them is a junior barge and the other a junior eight-oared. The former is for the trophy donated by Fred C. Gastorf, president of the club, and the latter for the Mullanphy trophy.

All the clubs in the local harbor will have entrants in both races. Last year the St. Louis Rowing Club juniors cleaned up six of the seven events staged on the river and they are out to repeat. They will be without the services of their star coxswain, Rud Rietschle, though, and this may prove a severe setback for the aggregation.

Western, which landed the barge at its revival regatta last June, will enter the same crew tomorrow, as will Central, Mound City, Century, North End and Baden. Garemen trains hard in good weather for practice and the races tomorrow are expected to be hotly contested as there is great rivalry between the clubs in the local harbor.

The barge race, which will be the first on the program, will be started at 3:30 o'clock, with the eight to be run off at 4:30 o'clock.

Lindsay Shades Wilson.

Jack Lindsay was the winner over Jack Wilson after eight rounds of fast milling in the feature bout of the negro show at the Future City A. C. last night. Jackie Moore knocked out Jess Smith in the fourth round in the semi-windup, while Battling Johnny stopped Cyclone Kid in the preliminary in four sessions.

News From the Front.

SOMETHING, boys, has happened that will make the public cheer;
Obregon and Villa may retire to the rear.
I'll tell you all about it if you'll let me have your ear.
While we go marching to glory.

Hooray! Hooray! Who said "It can't be done!"
Hooray! Hooray! The Browns have scored a run;
The great event transpired in the town of Washington,
While they were marching to glory.

How the people shouted when that good old run was made;
Even the potatoes winked their eyes at them and said:
"Keep it up, you rascals, and you'll surely make the grade,
While you go marching to glory."

Hooray! Hooray! Our boys are hard to down;
Hooray! Hooray! They startled all the town.
'Tis rumored that the White House will receive a coat of brown,
While we are marching to glory.

* * *

Yes, Indeed.

Now that the Browns have scored a run we believe that we may be justified in hoping that they will win a game of baseball somewhere, some time, from somebody in the dim future.

* * *

For the harrowing details of the casualty at Robison Field yesterday see Mr. Bancroft, "the sad historian of the pensive plain."

* * *

In the light of what transpired we would be justified in accusing Mr. Bancroft of pernicious activity.

* * *

However, two outa three isn't so bad. In fact it looks like first division.

* * *

The Browns may not finish one-two-three, but we'll wager the family plate that they'll not be worse than six-seven-eight.

* * *

Guess the trouble with the Browns is there are two many left-handed runners on the team.

* * *

An exchange says "when Matty took the rubber against the Braves the crowd at the Polo Grounds holds its breath." Why the suspended animation? Must have thought if they didn't blow Matty wouldn't either.

* * *

The Browns seem to have discarded "Jones" ball for the good old-fashioned "Brown" brand.

* * *

The Name's the Thing.

I dunno. If you'd take the champion Red Sox and hang the name of Browns on 'em they'd finish ninth in an eight-club circuit.

* * *

Jack Graney has a pet bulldog which has been appointed official mascot for the Cleveland Indians. The Indians have the lead and intend to hang on to it with bulldog tenacity.

At the present juncture it looks like Frank Snyder will lead the league in free transportation by a wide margin. Not that Frank is noted as a patient waiter, but the pitchers just insist on franking him down to the intiat station the minute he raps on the ticket window.

Quite So.

The Giants captured their fourth straight from the Pirates yesterday. The Giants have hit their stride. And by the same token the Pirates have hit the slide.

The Phillies made "Sea Lion" Hall take water in the fourth inning. Wasn't a very good day for Sea Lions.

Ames Athletes Say Bob Simpson's World's Mark in Hurdle Should Stand

AMES, Io., May 13.—The members of the Ames track team, which met Missouri University a week ago in dual meet, when the famous Mr. Robert Simpson reduced the world's high hurdle record from 15 seconds, held by Kelley of California, to 14 4-5 seconds, are unanimous in their contention that the wonderful race of Simpson should stand and give the Missourian the credit for a wonderful feat. Simpson tied the world's record in the Penn games.

Roscoe Packer, the Ames hurdler, who did not place in the Penn race on account of stumbling on a hurdle after having made second fastest time in the preliminary heat, holds the honor of being one of the very few men who ever finished a foot race ahead of Robert Simpson. Packer beat Simpson here a year ago in dual meet with Missouri.

JONES' MEN FACE C. MACK'S CELLAR CHAMPIONS TODAY

It Will Be a Fight for Last Place All the Way Through Between Pair.

ATHLETICS ARE FIGHTING

Although Team Has Lost Often, It Has Given Other Entrants a Battle.

By J. E. WRAY.
Sporting Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.—A desperate struggle for possession of American League cellar will be inaugurated this afternoon at Shibe Park when the much-derided Philadelphia Athletics will oppose Fielder Jones' tribe in the first of a series of four epics.

At the start of the season when predicting writers shut their eyes and fired random shots, St. Louis was figured to have a pennant chance, while Philadelphia was unanimously chosen to hold down last place. We will say for Philadelphia that, to the present time, it has been consistent, despite the best efforts of the Browns to dislodge them from their intrenched position.

But because they are last, don't figure it out that this club has been playing bad baseball. Bo, it's shocking to relate, but this team has actually performed as if it meant business. Nearly every defeat it has suffered—and it got away to the tune of six straight losses at the outset—was a hard-fought game, not a walk-over.

Playing Good Baseball.

The improvement is largely due to the good early playing of three pitchers—Bush, Nabors and Myers. The old guard of hang-over world's champions did not hit at the start of the season, but Oldring, Strunk and McInnis are beginning to wake up and whang the ball. The club's veteran skeleton is good enough, if the pitching continues to come through. Thursday, however, Myers passed 10 men and yet Detroit could not win, Burns was the only Tiger to hit the ball that day.

With Schang, Strunk, McInnis, La Jole and Walsh batting in succession, Mack's club seemes to be well-equipped on attack. Witt and Pick, at short and third, have been doing well enough.

Mack's great weakness is in reserve talent and in pitchers. The three hurlers named need reinforcement. If Bressler should come back with a good year, the Athletics could feel encouraged. Crowell, one of the wildest of last season's beginners, Sheehan, Richardson and Weaver are others on Mack's pitching staff.

They are still in the "promising" class—a division, it may be remarked, which graduates few and enrolls many.

Club Weak on Pitchers.

When Connie Mack wrecked his club, last year, he said it would take him three years or thereabouts before he would be able to fight for the flag in earnest.

Last season Mack's team was about three degrees below the limit. Even the veterans lost heart and fell down. This year, the uplift has started—or seemingly has begun. But the club still is a long way from being a winner. It is getting away with something now; but if it isn't as gloriously last at the end of the 1916 season as it was in 1915, it will be because of strength that has not yet been uncovered.

Mack, too, will have hanging over him the threat of filling Lajoie's shoes. The veteran is bound to end his career within a year or two. He is not covering any more territory than a dime would buy on Broadway and Olive street. It is said; and his hitting is the only valued part of his performance.

Right here, however, is where the Athletics have it on the Browns. The veterans own a hitting punch which has not yet been seen in the camp of Fielder Jones.

The Browns escaped two calamities yesterday. Walter Johnson failed to pitch, as advertised; while Philadelphia saved us from last place by losing to Detroit. But Southpaw Harry Harper, who is several degrees wilder than the Man of Borneo or the March Hare, managed to administer the third defeat suffered by the Browns in Washington, score 4 to 1.

Browns Lose Another.

The game was a study in light and shade. Brilliant plays abounded, both sides contributing, but manual arrors by St. Louisans abounded and, in fact, cost the game.

The first inning was a nightmare, from the standpoint of the St. Louis defense. Jim Park failed to pitch a couple of balls right, according to the known weakness of two of the hitters up, but even so, he might have gotten away to a clean start but for a combination of horrors such as might have discouraged a less game hurler.

Just as did Weilman, on the previous day, Park walked Morgan. Foster filed out. Milan then got one that suited him and singled to right. Honors would still have been easy, but Miller let the drive get away from him. Morgan scored and Milan pulled up at third. Then Hank Severeid thought he saw a chance to catch Milan napping at third base and fired a shot at Deal, which went to left field, another run counting. The next two men were easy outs. Not a run should have been scored.

Milan again found Park for a single in the sixth round and Rondeau sacrificed him. Again all might have been well, but Miller hesitated on Judge's long fly and it got away for a triple. Milan, of course, scored. Another followed when Park yielded a pair of singles later.

Outside of these two setbacks Park pitched good enough ball to win any game and his showing was considered All.

The Browns lacked a punch throughout the contest, when chances offered. That explains their defeat better than the offensive scoring of the enemy. The Mound Cityans only tally came in the third inning. With one down, Ernie Johnson, who is proving himself an unusually good man at getting on base, started off with a single. He stole second. Miller struck out, making two down. Sisler was walked. McBride's error on Pratt's grounder filled the bags and Maranas came through with a hit that scored Johnson. Deal fanned and the rally ended.

THE POST-DISPATCH'S DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS AND FINANCE

MOTOR STOCKS FEATURE TRADE IN WALL STREET

Wide Gains Are Scored by Several Issues; Railroads Are Steady.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 13.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The cheerfulness incident to the holiday atmosphere showed itself on the Stock Exchange today, where the advances, which began yesterday, were carried substantially further at the opening, with fairly active trading. The doubts and fears that had recently held the market in check seemed to be temporarily in abeyance, and some stocks, notably the issues of the motor companies, the early advances amounted to from 2 to 10 points, the largest gain occurring in Willys Overland.

"Organized buying seemed to be responsible for a good part of this activity. Less extensive gains were noted in the railway shares, as in the other industrial stocks. The upward tendency, however, was not steadily maintained and before the close many of the larger gains had been greatly reduced or wiped out. The market presented little stability and fluctuations were more or less erratic.

The bank report showed a further decrease of $7,114,910 in surplus reserve, following a decline of $2,244,920 last week. This item now stands at $88,787,280. This week's loss, however, was accompanied by an increase of $24,196,000 in deposits and of $30,575,000 in the loan item.

"The flow of gold from the banks was checked in the past week, the loss being only $1,500,000. Reserve in the banks' own vaults declined $1,191,000. The aggregate reserve showed a decline of $2,750,000."

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S WALL STREET TRANSACTIONS

NEW YORK, May 13.—The financial community's absorbing interest in the preparedness demonstration probably accounted for the light dealings during today's brief session. Activity centered mainly about issues identified with that movement, however, motor stocks, Baldwin Locomotives and Crucible Steel pointing the way to appreciably higher prices. Studebaker was the most conspicuous feature, scoring an extreme gain of 7 at 141, while Willys-Overland rose 10 to the new record of 270 with nine points for General Motors at 460. There was little inquiry for former favorites, United States Steel fluctuating narrowly. Rails reflected realizing sales although Reading was strong, rising above 90, a new maximum quotation. Western Union was the feature of the utilities group with an advance of over 3 points. The closing was strong. Bonds were steady.

London Stock Market.

LONDON, May 13.—Money was in good supply and discount rates were quiet today. Treasury bills were freely purchased. The stock market maintained a good tone, with the usual week-end business, mainly in Australian short-term bonds, home rails and oil and rubber stocks. Peruvian issues advanced and shipping shares were maintained. In the American section Canadian Pacific was strong and active, while the rest of the list ruled quiet, but firm.

COTTON TRADING IS CHECKED BY PARADE

NEW YORK, May 13.—With many brokers preparing to take part in the preparedness parade this afternoon, trading in the cotton market was comparatively quiet this morning, and after opening steady at an advance of 4 to 9 points, prices sagged off under scattering Wall street liquidation.

The opening advance to 13.01c for July and 13.15c for October was encouraged by relatively firm cables and there was some Liverpool buying here early. The tendency to realize profits on long cotton was promoted by rather a bearish view of the weekly statistics and the supply and distribution figures, which made the domestic mill consumption by lint cotton 531,716 bales during April, compared with 613,625 for March and 514,009 last year.

The early setback carried July contracts off to 12.89c and October to 13.05c, about a point under last night's closing. Prices then steadied on covering and the close was 3 to 6 points net higher.

CATTLE—There was the usual light supply of cattle on hand today, only a couple of cars getting in, and these were carried over for Monday's trade. All choice, fat cattle are closing steady to strong for the week, with best steers quotable at $9.25 to $9.75. Local dealers look for another light run the coming week, as farmers in the West are busy planting corn, and dry weather will keep down the movement of cattle from South Texas.

SHEEP—Prices are unchanged with the best lambs at $10, sheep $8.50 and bucks $7.

HORSES AND MULES—Today disclosed no change in horse trading. The run was an ordinary one, most of which found outlet before the close. There was very little trade to speak of outside of foreign trade. Market was nominally steady.

Mules sold on the same low, draggy basis that has characterized trading in that quarter all week. Receipts were fair and the supply in excess of demand.

Wheat lost about ½c in the early trading on the Merchants' Exchange today, on good weather for the growing crop, then rallied over 1c on Hessian fly reports from Kansas. B. W. Snow reported adverse conditions in Kansas and was largely responsible for the advance. The market closed strong and about 1c over yesterday's finish.

Corn futures were irregular to a small fraction higher, largely in sympathy with wheat and on Liverpool cables ½d to 1d up. Oats were quiet. Corn and oats finished firm at fractional gains.

The Liverpool cable said: "Spot wheat was unchanged; but firm today. Easier American cables were offset by lack of pressure of shippers' offers. Cargo market was steady. Manitobas 1½d lower; winters unchanged and Plates and Australians steadily held. India offers are lacking. Indications of liberal shipments from America this week as shown by Bradstreet's had some effect, but American offers are steady and clearances from exporting countries are disappointing. Tonnage remains scarce. The corn market was dull, but firm; spot ½d to 1d higher. Parcel market 3d dearer. Floating quantity is lighter and Plate offers of new are lighter. American shipments were disappointing, and mostly to the Continent."

Illinois State crop report shows winter wheat condition May 1, 68 per cent, indicated crop 18,149,000 bushels. Oats, condition 91. Increased acerage 2 per cent.

Argentine weather is fine; arrivals at ports increasing, but no pressure to sell. Oats in urgent request and corn steadily held. Buenos Aires wheat closed steady; corn steady. In France, weather is unfavorable and native offers of wheat are light. Arrivals are disappointing, and floating quantity moderate.

Russell's News:

New York wires: The exoptr business reported late incaluded about 800,000 bu. wheat and about 500,000 bu. Canadian oats.

The Chicago reports last night claimed that the area affected by Hessian fly seems to be increasing and shows enlarged area. The weakness late was due to further reports of fain in Kansas and Nebraska.

Northwest cars:

	Today.	Last week	Last year.
Minneapolis	334	224	146
Duluth	15	22	58
Winnepeg	663	693	148
Total	1,012	939	352

Minneapolis stocks of wheat increased 30,000 bu. for 1 day. Total 9,239,000 bu.; last year, 4,743,000 bu.

B. W. Snow says: "The rainfall in Kansas for the past 48 hours ending this morning has been confidel mainly to the northeastern counties centering largely in the Blue and Republican Valleys, with a little that was beneficial at a couple of points in the northwest counties. The section visited needed the rain, but it is not the important wheat terrotory. The big wheat districts of the State, Southtern, Central and Western, have reported only trifling showers, with too little precipitation to be of any general value. The sudden apparent breaking down of the Kansas crop promise is not because of direct dry weather damage for real drought has not been experienced, but it is the result mainly of Hessian fly, which is just no wbecoming apparent to the ordinary observer, although its presence has been known over the widest area ever before visited, since last fall."

Snow speaks of the crop as breaking down, as if Kansas would raise no wheat. The Government estimate on the crop is about 100,000,000 bushels.

Clearances of wheat were 1,148,000 bu.; corn 187,000, oats 550,000, flour 30,000 bbls., wheat and flour 1,283,000 bu.

HESSIAN FLY REPORTS RALLY CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, May 13.—Wheat prices rallied today from a nearly setback that was caused by rains Southwest and by a forecast of additional moisture.

Bull leaders took the position that the rains had fallen in the big wheat producing sections of Kansas and that the apparent sudden breaking down of the Kansas crop promise was mainly the result of Hessian fly infestation now becoming evident to the ordinary observer.

Opening prices, which ranged from ⅛c off to ¼c up, with July at $1.16 to $1.16⅛, and Sept. at $1.15¾ to $1.16, were followed by a moderate general decline and then a recovery in full.

Subsequently further strength developed, owing to sales of hard winter wheat to go from here to the seaboard, the first instance in some time that such sales were reported. Prices closed firm at 1c to 1@1⅛c net advance, with July $1.17⅝ and Sept. $1.17⅛@1.17¼.

Inquiry for export corn acted as a stimulus to buyers. The close was steady at ¼c to ⅜c to ⅜@½c net gain.

W. C. T. U. HEARS OF GARDNER'S STAND ON WET-DRY ISSUE

The Rev. Elmer T. Clark Criticises Candidate for Not Replying to Letters.

The attitude of Fred D. Gardner, candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, toward the wet and dry issue, was brought up for discussion at the thirty-second annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union at the Union Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday.

The Anti-Saloon League has been attacking Gardner for failure to answer its letter asking him how he would stand on a statutory prohibition law, with a peace, health or safety clause attached, to prevent the referendum from being invoked against it.

In reply to the attacks of the league Gardner has been sending out fac simile copies of a letter written by his pastor, the Rev. William Wirt King of the Grace Methodist Church, in which it is stated that any reports that Gardner is with the breweries, or that he would not stand for the best things in civic and public life, and would not enforce temperance legislation, including the Sunday closing law, are untrue and absolutely unfair to him.

The Rev. Dr. Elmer T. Clark, in a speech before the convention yesterday, asked why Gardner did not answer his own letters and state how he stood on these issues, instead of relying upon his pastor.

Dr. Clark also criticised Bishop Tuttle and the Rev. George Lloyd, who signed the letter, which Dr. King had written in behalf of Gardner. He said that Bishop Tuttle had come out against prohibition in 1910, and that the Rev. Mr. Lloyd, as a member of the Legislature, never voted for any dry bill, and always voted for the wet bills. He added that he did not believe many drys would care to support Gardner for Governor.

The letter written by Dr. King, and indorsed by the Rev. Dr. James W. Lee, Presiding Elder of the St. Louis District of the Methodist Church, the Rev. Dr. W. C. Bitting, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, and the Rev. Z. B. Phillips, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, in addition to Bishop Tuttle and Dr. Lloyd, was printed in the last issue of the St. Louis Christian Advocate, the organ of the Methodist Church.

The Advocate stated that while it did not interfere in political matters, the fact that Gardner is a candidate for the high office of Governor of Missouri did not forbid it to say that, socially, it esteemed him as a Christian gentleman of high order and worthy to be entrusted with any responsibility.

POISON CHARGE IS PERSECUTION, SAYS MRS. GILLIGAN

'STORIES WERE INVENTED'

Accuses Neighbors of Keeping Up Agitation That Lead to Her Arrest.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 13.—Mrs. Amy E. Archer-Gilligan, who is accused of causing the death of Franklin P. Andrews, an inmate of the Archer Home for Elderly People at Windsor, which she conducted, wrote out a strong denial of the charge in her cell here. Later her statement was given out through her lawyer, Benedict M. Holden. It follows:

"Soon after Mr. Andrews died in May 1914, I heard the authorities were trying to connect his death with the criminal act of someone in the home. Certain of my near neighbors who expected to profit from the inmates of my home invented stories to keep the agitation going. I am told that soon after Mr. Andrew's death Coroner J. Gilber Calhoun of Hartford and State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn started an investigation.

"Dr. Howard F. King, medical examiner and acting Coroner in Windsor, who has been attacked this week and who was Mr. Andrew's physician, asked the Coroner and State's Attorney to exhume the Andrews body and have an autopsy performed a short time after death.

One Suspicious Inmate.

"From inmates in the home I heard stories told on the streets of Windsor that they would be poisoned if they remained at the home and one day an old gentleman did become excited and declared I had drugged a glass of hot lemonade, given him for his cold. He asked the doctor to analyze the lemonade and the physician did so by drinking it right before him. And the doctor, he's alive today.

"During the twenty odd months that I knew the State police detectives were investigating my house and its management, knowing I had done no wrong and had nothing to fear I continued to run the home and solicit patronage.

"Many inmates died, but that is not strange, because they were all old and feeble and their relatives felt they must be cared for in some institution. Most of them were ailing from diseases other than those which usually accompany advanced age. Whenever a death occurred the relatives were notified, unless the relatives left word not to be notified or had abandoned the inmate.

"All Were Satisfied."

"I have had hundreds of aged, helpless and infirm, and have given them such comforts as the home could afford. I think they were all satisfied. When I was arrested I asked the State police officers if it would not be better for me to consult a lawyer, but they told me to follow their advice; that they were friendly to me and wanted no notoriety. I followed their advice and now I am in a jail cell without a hearing.

"The public knows nothing of my side and knows less about real facts behind my arrest and imprisonment. After I was locked up, Capt. Robert T. Hurley of the State police came and again advised me as a friend that they had four charges of murder against me. If I would sign a statement admitting one they would drop the other three. Thank God, I didn't follow his advice, because my counsel, Mr. Holden, informs me that if I had, this so-called friend would have rounded out his friendly advice with a conviction of the awful crime of murder.

"I am as innocent of wrongdoing to any person who has ever been an inmate of my house in either thought, word or deed as any child 5 years old. I am told that I took persons under a life contract and tried to make profit by poisoning them. An examination of the records, which have all been seized by the State police, will show the absurdity of such a claim.

Her Property Now Attached.

"I have conducted this home for years, and I inherited some property from my parents, and when my husband, Mr. Gilligan, died he left a will leaving his property to someone else than myself, so that I am today in jail charged with murder, know nothing of the evidence against me nor whom it is that I am charged with having murdered.

"I have two small pieces of real estate worth from $3000 to $9000, mortgaged for $4750, and I have worked hard all my life, cooking and scrubbing and washing, giving personal attention to the home and trying to educate my daughter, who is grief-stricken because of the charge which has been brought against me.

"When she was here at the jail this morning it almost broke my heart to learn that a picture of my baby had been put on the front page of a Hartford newspaper. This was a cowardly outrage and I hope those responsible will some day feel a little of the anguish which my mother's heart feels now.

"When I was managing the house I contracted some small bills and my lawyer tells me today that the kind-hearted Deputy Sheriff in Windsor has placed attachments upon the little bit of property I had, making it impossible for me further to mortgage it and raise funds for my defense. It seems as though all the world has turned against me and at times I feel a forlorn and defenseless woman, but I try to have faith in God and my love for my baby girl gives me strength to live until my innocence is proved. I don't ask them to prove me guilty; I want a chance to prove my innocence."

Mrs. Jarr Tells of an Old Beaux She Met, and Mr. Jarr Tells of a One-Time Sweetheart.

WHEN Mr. Jarr came home the other evening, Mrs. Jarr bustled up to the door and said excitedly:

"Guess whom I met today? You never could think who it was!"

Mrs. Jarr was smiling and seemingly in splendid spirits.

"I can't imagine who it was," replied Mr. Jarr, "but I'm glad it was someone that it was a pleasure to meet. You appear happy over the encounter, and so I'm glad you were with a good old friend."

"Perhaps you wouldn't be so glad if you knew who it was. You used to grow wild with anger at the sight of him."

"Did I?" said Mr. Jarr, carelessly. "Oh, well! So long as you are pleased to see him, I'll hold no spites."

"That's a very queer way to speak," replied Mrs. Jarr, bridling up. "A very queer way, indeed."

"Why, no, it isn't," said Mr. Jarr. "I'm satisfied, so long as you like the person."

"When I tell you it was F. D.?" ventured Mrs. Jarr, mysteriously.

"Who?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"F. D., who always wore a fancy waistcoat and a big watch chain across it and a watch charm that had been presented to him by his lodge?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "I'd better not say any more."

"Go as far as you like," replied Mr. Jarr. "Did he wear a wrist watch?"

"No, he didn't," snapped Mrs. Jarr. "Well, if you want to know, it was Frank Duffield."

"I don't think I remember him," said Mr. Jarr, knitting his brows. "Duffer, did you say?"

"Duffield! Frank Duffield! Don't you remember the time you carried on like a maniac because he had called to see me before I was married and brought me an ice cream cone all the way from the corner?" asked Mrs. Jarr.

"Oh, yes; the guy that borrowed the money from me to pay for the dinner he invited us to?"

"That's right! Abuse Mr. Duffield!" snapped Mrs. Jarr. "You always did hate him. One thing sure! He certainly was very fond of me. Very fond. He told me that, in despair, he married twice, since, but I was the only one he ever loved!"

"There, what did I tell you?" cried Mr. Jarr. "And that reminds me, if you met an old beau today, I met an old sweetheart. You remember Grace Wilkins?"

"I never went with that class of people," said Mrs. Jarr icily.

"Oh, come now," replied Mr. Jarr, "Grace was a fine little girl!"

"I have no doubt you think so," said Mrs. Jarr, "but at least you might have had more regard and respect for yourself (I will not say for me) than to flirt with creatures on the street."

"Creatures?" replied Mr. Jarr. "Why, she's married and has two children."

"Oh, I have no doubt you think she's a very nice little girl!" cried Mrs. Jarr. "But you say yourself she is a married woman with two children, and yet she stopped you on the street and made a show of herself!"

"But you are a married woman with two children and you stopped on the street to talk to an old beau!"

"That's totally different!" said Mrs. Jarr, bursting into tears.

And so it is. But why?

AFTER everybody agrees that something should be done about something, the problem is to get somebody to do it.

The Dropped "R."

THE gormandizer smacked his lips, when the last of his two dozen bluepoints had passed down his throat. Then he looked at his watch.

"12 p. m.," it told him.

He glanced at a calendar on the wall.

"April 30," it said.

"I'd have another month for eatin' oysters, if some idiot had never nicknamed Mary 'May.'" he growled.

Got Back at Him.

THE word 'reviver' spells the same backward or forward."

It was a frivolous man who spoke.

"Can you think of another?"

The serious man scowled up from his newspaper.

"Tut-tut!" he cried contemptuously.

And they rode on in silence.

Tell Him, Pop!

Edward: Pa, do you know everything?

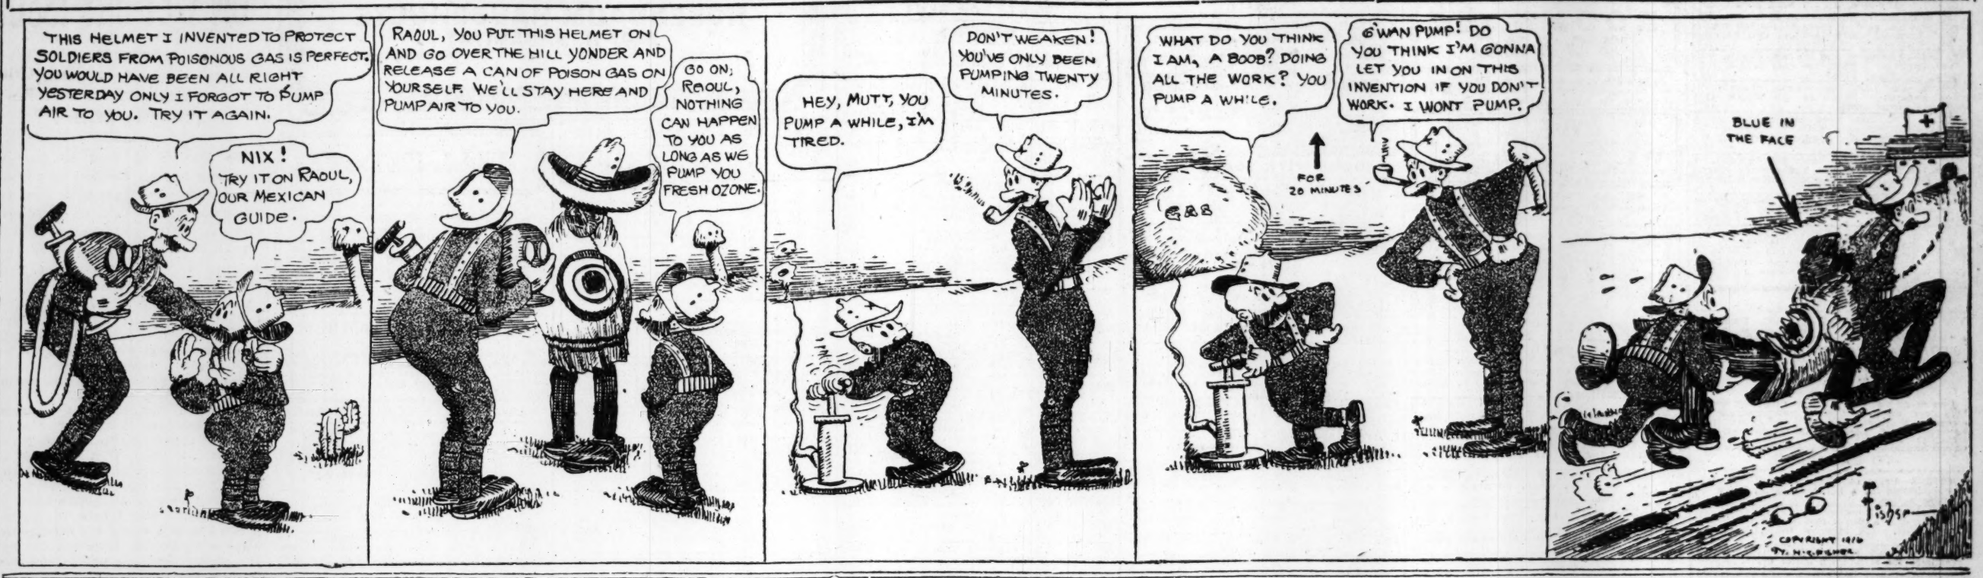

Pa: Yes, my son, why do you ask?

Edward: Why, I wanted to find out why the heavy end of a match is the "light" end.

Liquid Courage.

A FARMER spilled some whiskey on his barn floor so that a little stream of it ran out. A certain mouse sallied forth from his hiding place, and, being thirsty, took a sip. It tasted strange, and he went back and thought. Then he came out and took another sip and went back again and thought. Then he came out and took a big drink. Then he jumped up on the edge of the soap box and stood on his hind legs, bristled up his whiskers, and exclaimed: "Now bring out that blamed cat!"

STOUT red-faced lady: Do you mean to say you won't give me my money back for this book just because I have read it? You know you advertise that it is your aim to have only satisfied customers.

"Yes, madam, but what is the matter? Is the print imperfect, or anything like that?"

"No."

"Then why are you not satisfied with the novel?"

"Well, I don't like the way it ends."

Sympathetic.

JONES and Robinson are great friends, aren't they?"

"Yes, they have interests in common. They were both jilted by the same girl."

Don't Ever Let Anyone Tell You This as a New One

DO you think you'll have much trouble popping the question?"

"No. I think I'll have more trouble questioning the pop."

Love and the Liner.

A SENTIMENTAL young lady from town was on the steamship quay, where she saw a young girl sitting on a trunk in an attitude of utter dejection and despair.

"Poor thing," thought the romantic young lady, "she is probably alone and a stranger! Her pale cheeks and great, sad eyes tell of a broken heart and a yearning for sympathy."

She went over to the traveler to win her confidence.

"Crossed in love?" she asked sympathetically.

"No," replied the girl with a sigh, "crossed in the 'Frolic,' and an awfully rough passage, too!"

Natural Mistake

OUT on Egypt's sands the territorials were camped. The Captain of the company was all that a Captain should not be. He was short and stout and round of shoulder.

Needless to say, among his men he was known as "Humphy." One night, on returning to camp, the sentry let him go by unchallenged, and so roused his military wrath.

"What the blue Alsatian Mountains do you mean?" he snapped. "Why didn't you demand the countersign?"

The sentry trembled with fear so badly that his wits got shaken badly. "Bedad, sir," he stammered, "I thought you was a c-c-c-amel."—London Answers.

Silas McGuggin, Lady Killer

SAID Silas McGuggin, in Beeweeple's store; "My legs an' my back an' my shoulders are sore. I reckon I ought to be laid up in bed. But here I am workin' as usual, instead. Last night I went down to the Happy Club's ball an' started a riot right there in the hall. The ladies all clamored to dance with me, Jed." Old Peeweeple grunted. "I gotcha!" he said. "Well, I'm not so fond of these one-steps an' such," old Silas went on. "They're a little too much for hard-workin' men like I happen to be, but when all them girls started wrastlin' for me, I had to do one-steps an' tangos an' trots. I cut figger eights an' I tied sailors' knots. The ladies wus tickled an' proud of me, Jed." Old Peeweeple grunted. "I gotcha!" he said. "The young men," said Si, "had to take a back seat. I showed 'em some things about shakin' the feet. The ladies jest mobbed me; they thought I wus great. Today I'm a'thinkin' I hit a hard gait. My muscles are sore an' I'm all tired out. You see, I'm right graceful, but just a bit stout. The ladies declared I was wunderful, Jed." Old Peeweeple grunted. "I gotcha!" he said. "You act like you doubt me," said Si, with a frown. "I'll bet you today I'm the talk of the town. But since yer so crabbed I reckon I'll go. You figger I'm lyin'—I know it, by Joe!" Then Silas got up and he started away—a scowl on his face, but with no more to say. He shot a big sneer of contempt straight at Jed. Old Peeweeple grunted. "I gotcha!" he said.

Ex-Officio.

IN a recent examination paper for a boy clerk's post was this question:

"If the President and all the members of the Cabinet should die, who would officiate?"

Robert, a boy of 14, thought for a time, trying in vain to recall who came next in succession. At last a happy inspiration came to him and he answered:

"The undertaker."

OPPORTUNITY knows better than to bother the fellow who is on his way for a day's fishing.

Suspicious.

MR. JONES," says the proprietor to his superintendent, "I think you had better have a little investigation made of young Freely."

"Why, he seems to be very industrious and perfectly satisfied; he gets a very low salary, but he never asks for a raise. He has about as hard a place as anybody on the pay roll, but he is really doing well."

"That's just it. The young man is entirely too cheerful. When a man who works for us, at what we pay, is cheerful, then's the time to suspect him."

Usurper.

TRAVELER: Here, landlord, what's the matter with your dog? I've driven him away a dozen times, but he always comes back again and sits close to my chair, watching every mouthful I take. Do take him out and let me have my dinner in peace.

Landlord: Ah, sir, my Carlo is such a knowing brute. I expect you have got the plate he generally eats off!

Spring Onions.

ARE we going anywhere this evening, dear?"

"No, love."

"Is anyone likely to come to see us?"

"I hardly think so. The weather is so disagreeable that everybody will be glad to stay at home."

"In that case you may pass the green onions."

A Chance to Rejoice.

HERE you are, sir!" cried the hawkers, extending a bouquet. "Buy some beautiful flowers for your sweetheart?"

"Nothing doing," responded the young man. "I haven't got a sweetheart."

"I see!" was the prompt rejoinder of the hawker. "Buy some flowers for your wife?"

"Wrong again! I am not married."

"Well, then, guv-nor," exclaimed the resourceful hawker, "buy the lot to celebrate your luck!"—Tit-Bits.

A WHOLE lot of men get the idea that they are breezy when they are merely windy.

They Probably Will.
